IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., Oct. 10, 1892.

There is an area of high barometric pressure that covers the entire eastern half of the country, and will cause continued fair weather during the next 36 hours.

There is a storm central over the northwest of considerable magnitude, which will probably increase in energy as it reaches the lake region; up to the present time it has not caused any decided change in the weather over that portion of the county.

The weather has been generally fair in all sections since Saturday and will continue so over the eastern half of the country; over the western half the conditions are favorable for showers during th enext 36 hours.

The temperature has risen over the west and northwest, and remained about stationary elsewhere. It will rise over the entire country to-day and over the east to-morrow; it will fall to-morrow in the northwest.

Local forecast for Toledo and vicinity for the next 36 hours.

OPENING DAY

Of the Grand Columbian Exercises.

Thousands Line the Streets of New York

And Do Honor to the Renouned Explorer.

School Children Waving the Stars and Stripes.

The City Gay With Bunting and the Streets Overflowed With the Marching Thousands.

New York, Oct. 10.—The metropolis of the republic inaugurates to-day the festivities incident to the commemoration of the landing of the intrepid Italian explorer upon the shores of a new land; a festive season, that, in one form or another, will continue until the close of the Columbian exposition a year hence.

On Saturday and yesterday in the Hebrew and Christian houses of prayer, and in the Sabbath schools thanks and expressions of gratitude were offered to the Almighty for directing Columbus and his crew toward this continent, and for the great, happy and prosperous nation that he has caused to be builded up.

The religious sentiment of the nation having thus been expressed Gotham inaugurates to-day a carnival, the like of which has never before been seen within her borders; a carnival that will not suffer in comparison with those of Venice in the olden time; a carnival in which the nation, state and municipality will all unite together to do honor to the memory of Columbus and of Discovery day.

Fittingly enough the opening day is given up to the rising generation; to the boys and girls who will be the men and women, the controllers of the nation, in the near future. It is school day, and right well the little ones knew it, for hundreds and thousands of them were up and about almost as soon as the booming of the big guns at the battery announced the dawn of day. The weather was fine, and a slight breeze was just sufficient to gently stir the flags and banners and draperies that combined to make up the exterior decorations of the city, decorations that were on a more elaborate scale than ever before in New York's history. Soon after breakfast the little ones commenced to pour out upon the thoroughfares.

Washington Square was the objective point for the boys, and into it they poured through every adjacent thoroughfare. By 10 o'clock the big square was literally black with the little ones, and some big ones as well, for it was college day as well as school day.

Columbia college turned out with a thousand students, and the same number turned out from the College of the City of New York, as well as from the New York university. Besides these the most prominent of the private educational institutions turned out their scholars in force. Among them were the following: Columbia Grammar school, Berkeley School corps, Barnard school, Cutler school, West End school, Weingart institute, Rugby academy, New York University of Law, Bryant and Stratton college, Metropolis Law school, Hebrew Orphan Asylum schools, Military School of Bordentown, Montclair Military academy, and the young Dalton Volunteers.

For a time it looked as though it would be impossible to get order out of chaos but most of the boys had been going through a course of drilling tactics for weeks and in some cases for months, and when the signals were given they took their places and formed into line like veterans.

Col. David S. Brown was grand marshal of the parade, with John Winfield Scott as adjutant and chief of staff, and Gen. James R. O'Beirne as marshal of the parochial schools.

It was close upon noon when the word was given and the head of the column moved. Behind the marshal and his escort came the pupils of the public schools, 10,000 strong, in 20 divisions.

Next in line were the college boys, 3,000 of them. Six thousand little ones turned out from the parochial schools of New York, and 4,000 more from those in Brooklyn.

The rear of the parade was brought up by the scholars of the numerous private schools, and of many Sunday schools, the little ones of which preferred to march under their own banners.

Every boy in line carried an American flag and waved it with enthusiasm, and what, with the cheering and the music of some thirty bands, it was an exhilirating spectacle.

Up Broadway to Fiftieth street the little ones marched like soldiers going to battle. The sidewalks, windows, balconies and roofs were packed, and the youngesters were given a reception in every block that would have swelled the head of a monarch.

When Fiftieth street was reached the column counter-marched and proceeded back to town.

A very pretty scene was witnessed at Reservoir square, where the boys were greeted by sixteen hundred girls from the public schools. One-third of them were attired in white, another third in red, and the third third in blue, making one immense and picturesque American flag.

When the head of the column came in view the maids began to sing the Star Spangled Banner, and they kept it up despite hoarseness and sore throats and flushed faces until the tail end of the last division had passed.

Down Fifth avenue marched theboys and thence via Seventeenth street to Union square.

Here ranged upon a platforme were some sixteen hundred young girls from the Catholic schools. They were also picturesquely attired in red, white and blue, and they might just as well have been with the rest of the little ones up town had it not been for the objections of the ecclesiastics, who demanded a separate station and objected to their mixing with the Protestant children.

The Union square contingent sang Columbia and America, and the boys passed on around Union square through Fourteenth street into Fifth avenue and thence back again into Washington square. There they were dismissed, and with shouts and cheers and waving of flags the ranks were broken and the little ones started in a thousand directions for their homes.

Music and orations at Carnegie hall and fireworks ad libitum on Brooklyn bridge. This is the program of the night. The music, which will be a new allegory in six parts by Silas G. Pratt, the noted composer, is entitled the "Triumph of Columbus," and was written especially for the quadro-centennial anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

The scenario is as follows: Part I.—Columbus's dream. Spirits of evil threaten; sirens taunt; spirit of light disperses them and encourages Columbus to renew his faith.

Part II.—The council of Salamanca. The argument. The attack. The defense.

Part III.—Columbus and his son Diego in want at La Rabida. The prayer, the succor by Father Juan Perez.

Part IV.—Isabella and her court. The dance, the song, the appeal of Father Perez. Favorable decision. Talavera's opposition. Plan spurned. Luis St. Angel's final appeal. The grand and final conception of the queen. Prayer for Columbus's success.

Part V.—The voyage. Flight of birds. Sailors' song. Siren's despair. Columbus' song of triumph. The munity. Sunset vespers. The signal gun. Land ho. Sailor sjubilant. Prayer of thanksgiving "Gloria in Excelsis Deo."

The cantata will be interpreted by twenty vocalists of note assisted by the Choral Union of five hundred voices, a boys' choir of thirty voices, and an orchestra of eighty pieces. After the audience is well satiated with music Chauncey Depew will deliver the Columbian oration.

At 10 o'clock the Brooklyn bridge will be illuminated and the preliminary flight of rockets will take place. The pyrotechnical spectacle will last for several hours.

MORE IN DETAIL.

The Greatest Day New York City Has Ever Seen.

New York, Oct. 10.—This was public school day in the order of festivities of New York's Columbian celebration. It was the second movement in the grand symphony arranged for the occasion.

1. Religious observances.
2. Educational display.
3. Naval procession.
4. Military parade.
5. General rejoicing and banquet.

Results of more than 250 years of educational work were represented in the parade, for the first school founded by the old Dutch settlers in 1633, in that part of "New Amsterdam," now known as West Seventy-seventh street, is still in existence, and is called the school of the Reformed church.

To-day New York owns 100 public school houses, representing an estimated value in sites and buildings of over $15,000,000, and provides education in its grammar schools for more than 260,000 pupils, boys and girls.

Twenty regiments of grammar school boys, of New York and Brooklyn and Long Island and New Jersey, eash regiment at least 500 strong, marched with swinging step and perfect alignment in the parade to-day, everybody proudly carrying a flag of his country, prepared to honor and defend it. And this was only one division of the parade.

They had been preparing for the occasion for weeks past, drilling in the armories of the Sixty-ninth and Twelfth regiments and in other buildings placed at their disposition and in the open squares, so that their discipline should be complete and their marching faultless as possible. Every boy entered into the patriotic spirit of the occasion. There were three other divisions of equally patriotic purpose.

In the second came the pupils of the parochial schools, academies and colleges of the Catholic church in New York and adjacent cities, over 5,000 strong, each pupil also carrying the national flag in connection with the emblems and banners of the churches and academies to which they belong.

Then followed the uniformed schools and last the students of maturer years, from the different colleges of law and medicine, in engineering and the arts, about 4,500 strong; 1,000 from Columbia college, 1,200 from the University of New York; 1,200 from the under graduates' college; 250 from the college of dentists, etc.

In the third division of the procession was a medley composed of numerous "institutes." It comprised Hebrew orphan asylums; German, Italian and French institutions of various characters, intermixed with trade schools, business colleges, military institutes and mechanics' societies, with 1,000 "young Dalton volunteens," whatever they may be, and 60 "glittering spears."

Altogether it is probable that there were 25,000 scholars and students in the procession. The din of the different bands was at times most confusing and discordant in the extreme—unavoidably so from the large number of bands and the small intervals of separation. Cappa's fine Seventh regiment band led, with 50 pieces, but there were also the military bands of the Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Twenty-second and Seventy-first New York regiments, all ranging from 35 to 50 pieces; the band of the First New Jersey regiment; the navy yard band; numerous private bands and innumerable drum corps.

In the distribution of American flags to the scholars under the direction of the executive committee on schools and colleges, these flags to a large extent forming the pass key to participation in the parade, care was taken that none should be given to boys under 12 years of age, but lest any of the weaker ones should fall by the wayside in the long line of march marked out, surgeons and ambulances were in attendance at convenient locations.

The girl scholars who were denied participation in the parade, were assigned a peculiarly appropriate and ornamental part in the proceedings. Artistically grouped on a stand in the reservoir square, at the junction of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, were nearly 1,700 pretty-faced school girls, each wearing a liberty cap, and costumed in red, white and blue respectively. The tableaux had been so arranged beforehand that on the approach of the procession almost instantaneously each one of the smiling, bright faced children so disposed themselves and their costumes as to present the effect of the American shield, with three American flags, artistically bunched on each side of it.

The fluttering, quivering motions of the admirably arranged bands of colors, as 1,700 sweet girl voices sang the "Star Spangled Banner" and other patriotic songs, while their gallant boy fellow students tramped past with quickened step and ringing cheers must have left a lasting impression of the Columbian school day celebration on the minds of thousands of the rising generation.

On the east side of Union square, a light, effective tableaux was presented by 1,600 school girls of the Catholic parochial schools, and on a neighboring stand 300 tiny little waifs belonging to the Children's Aid society waved their miniature American flags as the procession passed by.

But the feature of the parade which perhaps attracted more attention than any other along the line, was the march of, not "six little Indian boys," but 300 of them from the Carlisle (Pa.) Indian Industrial school, accompanied by their own band of music and partly dressed in Indian costume, partly in uniform of their school.

These sturdy going warriors of different tribes, who are fighting a way to civilization for themselves and their race by means of practical education in agricultural and the mechanical arts, as well as in the ordinary grammar school methods of study, had been drilled and trained for exhibition in Chicago, in the Columbian opening ceremonies there.

They admirably illustrate the fact that education and milder and more humanizing methods than those originally pursued, are surely and rapidly elevating in the scale of civilization of the race Columbus found in sole possession of the country which he claimed by right of Christian discovery.

There was one other reflection which impressed itself upon all those among the spectators of to-day's parade who had witnessed the recent memorable encampment of the G. A. R. in Washington, which was that while in that wonderfully vigorous and well preserved body of men the United States had a veteran reserve force of which the greatest European military power might be proud, in these scholars and students, there was a young growth of military patriotism which promised well for the future peace and security of the country.

The route of the procession was from the neighborhood of Fifth avenue and Fifty-Seventh street, near the lower entrance to Central Park, down Fifth avenue to Seventeenth street and Union Square, thence around the square to Fourteenth street, to Fifth avenue again, and down that thoroughfare to Washington square, West Fourth street and Broadway, at which points the signal to disband was given.

The grammar school boys gathered in their respective buildings early in the morning and marched up Fifth avenue to about Fiftieth street and then turned and began their march over the alloted route. The other divisions formed chiefly in the vicinity of Fifty-ninth street.

It was a perfect day for brisk marching. The rain storms of Saturday night and Sunday had simply cleared the air without damage to any of the decorations except a few occasional strips of cheap cotton bunting, against which the committee on arrangements had issued a warning.

Bright sunshine and cool breezes had replaced lowering skies and the city looked its best. All the numerous public stands with the exception of a few seats reserved in Madison square were for this day only thrown open free. The immense attendance of strangers was a forecast of what may be expected when the climax of the celebration is reached on Wednesday.

Following the carriages came the committee of arrangements, the school commissioners, the president of the board of education, Mr. Hunt, the city superintendent of public schools; Mr. Jasper, Mayor Grant, and other distinguished guests. The mayor, the grand marshal, Captain David S. Brown, and Charles Guggenheimer dropped out of the procession at Washington square and reviewed it from that point.

The Seventh regiment band headed the first public school division of 20 regiments of grammar school boys under command of Mr. John Robinson, principal of grammar school 94, as marshal. He marched surrounded by a guard of honor of 24 senior boys forming a hollow square with open front.

The second division of the Catholic parochial schools was under the command of Gen. James R. Obeirne as marshal. The third division, the uniformed schools, was marshalled by Major Max Reece and the fourth, the college division, was under the command of Major Franklin Bartlett.

Three hundred and fifty German-American girls, handsomely costumed, marched in the line with the New York "Turn Bezirk" and sung patriotic airs as they marched.

The Long Island contingent, 1,000 strong, headed by its mayor, the only "Pat" Gleason, and the famous Old Guard band, came over in a body by itself and joined the parade.

As the decorations of the city approach completion they grow rapidly into effect. Expense has nowhere been spared, but better even than lavish expenditure is the general manifestation of good taste that prevails. In this the admirable recommendation of the committee on taste as to harmony of colors and unity of design have borne good fruit.

There is an almost entire absence of cheap advertising devices. Patriotism, not business, is put forward as the inspiring motive. All the decorations of clubs and churches, of palatial business buildings, public edifices and private dwellings are in unison and display a completeness on the general effect which opens up a vista of immense possibilities for New York city in the decorative way in the future.

The magnificent proportions of the stately new buildings erected in late years along the line of all principal streets, the variety of the materials employed give a diversity of softened tints and tones as a background for the brilliant views displayed, such as can be equalled nowhere else on this continent and in very few cities in Europe. Add to these advantages the inestimable gifts of a clear atmosphere charged with the ozone of the Atlantic and free from the pollution of coal, soot or dust, and the combination is one that cannot be surpassed. The hundreds of thousands of strangers thronging the city, many of them now realize for the first time how exceedingly beautiful a city "Newest New York" is.

The presidential reviewing stand in Madison Square opposite the Worth statue was pleasantly shaded by pink striped awnings supplementing the fall foliage of the trees in the square. The stands stretching to right and left of the presidential dais and on the opposite side of the avenue the entire length of the square were thronged with spectators who were admitted by ticket only, and who gathered early and waited patiently for the passing show.

Brilliant gonfalons and bannerettes were hung across the streets from Twenty-third to Twenty-sixth street; the Hoffman house, the Madison Square bank building and other imposing edifices facing the reviewing party were fairly covered with artistic decorations, making the scene a very brilliant one.

At 10:25 the first division came to the waiting crowd. The carriage of Gov. Roswell P. Flower, New York's chief executive, drawn by a pair of spanking bays, drove up rapidly to the reviewing stand and the governor alighted, accompanied by Adjutant General Porter in full dress uniform and followed by Generals Earle, Varian, Jenks, Halsey and other members of the governor's staff.

The spectators cheered the governor and renewed the cheering when, immediately afterwards, the guest of the day, Vice-President Morton, representing President Harrison, drove up in an open barouche and was received at the entrance to the stand by Gov. Flower, who conducted him to the seat set apart for the absent president.

Mr. Morton was accompanied by Mr. Hugh R. Garden, president of the Southern society, and Mr. Howard Carroll. He entered into a pleasant chat with Gov. Flower and those around him and with a number of prominent politicians who came up and shook hands with the governor and the vice president. Then came another lull of waiting expectancy while the hot rays of the nearly vertical sun beat down upon the spectators in the uncovered stands, and peddlers of ice water at ten cents a glass drove a flourishing and profitable trade.

It was 11:15 o'clock before the first distant strains of the numerous bands fell upon the ear and at 11:25 the advance squad of splendidly mounted police and the marshal and his aides wearing gorgeous sashes of the national colors, rode past. The vice president and governor rose to receive them and bowed as each of the well mounted aides raised his hat. Next came Mayor Grant and Commissioner Guggenheimer, sturdily marching on foot at the head of the first division and lustily cheered as they came along. Then came the boys with their own bands in uniform marching 20 abreast with a rythmic swing and a military bearing which carried all before it, and company after company was greeted with shouts of applause as each seemed to march ever better than the company preceding. Each company carried its company flag to the right and every boy had pinned on his left breast a tiny United States flag. Their captains carried canes and gave their orders in a shrill boyish treble pleasant to hear.

Heads up, eyes front, looking neither to the right nor left, not even when they passed the vice president, the soldier lads tramped, with a perfect alignment, which nothing was allowed to break.

Looking up Fifth avenue as far as the rising ground on Forty-seventh street, nothing could be seen but an undulating army of boys marching rapidly on without a break. After half an hour had elapsed 13 of the 20 regiments of the first division had passed in review and then the first company of little colored lads came in sight, marching as proudly and as deftly as their white comrades; a cheer greeted them.

The silver letters on the crimson company flags glistened in the sunlight like the glint of bayonets. Every company carried at least four small United States flags and some bore silken colors of almost regulation size.

The stalwart form of Mayor Gleason marching at the head of the Long Island contingent was recognized and he was greeted with loud cheers as he courteously saluted the reveiwing officers.

LOAN EXHIBITION.

It Opened in New York With Flattering Prospects.

New York, Oct. 10.—The Columbian loan exhibition in the National academy of Design was opened at 9 o'clock this morning and despite the early hour the building was soon filled by the crowd which had been in waiting to view the fine collection of pictures. In the four galleries of the Academy of Design there are exactly 221 pictures, many of them old favorites which have been commended at the various exhibitions for years past.

The committee sent out over 400 applications for pictures, but only about one-quarter called forth favorable responses. The bulk of the exhibits were drawn from the private collections of William T. Evans, Sanford White, W. F. Havemeyer, Thomas E. Clark and a few others. The exhibition will remain open all week and on the last day all visitors will be admitted free.

ST. MARYS.

Sensational Elopement—Miscellaneous Mention.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 10.—(Special)—Minster, this county, is excited over a sensational elopement in high life which occurred last night, when Joseph Schmieder, son, of ex-Senator Schmeder, deceased, and Miss Lizzie Fredericks, daughter of Postmaster Fredericks, eloped to this city and were married by Rev. Lutz. Miss Fredericks' parents were strongly opposed to Schmeder and the affair is the talk of the town.

Freight train No. 54 on the Lake Erie & Western broke in two this morning and both parts came together again smashing several cars into smithers.

The skeleton of a human being was unearthed by workmen this morning on the Plunkett property. It was in good condition yet when found and gives indications of having recently been placed there.

DISASTROUS YEAR.

Farmers All Over the World Will Suffer This Winter.

London, Oct. 10.—In commenting upon a special account of the condition of the British crops, published in its columns, the Times says:

"The conclusion on the whole case is that the present year will be a disastrous one for the British farmer. The chief loss will be in wheat, while there will be no adequate set-off in any other crop. The outlook for the winter is gloomy for all classes, and it becomes a grave question how many farmers will be able to struggle through it."

Considering the continued shrinkage of wheat cultivation the Times advises farmers to turn their attention to high-class dairy produce.

IN GOOD CONDITION.

London, Oct. 10.—The accounts of the London branch of the bank of Australia show liabilities of 980,000 pounds in excess of the assets. This deficiency is due to large overdrafts in the director's books, which, it is alleged, have been doctored by the chairman, who is interested in certain companies which owed the bank the large sum of 600,000 pounds.

REWARD FOR A DYNAMITER.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—The Carnegie Steel company have offered a reward of $1,000 for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who threw the dynamite bomb into the non-union boarding house at Homestead. This reward has stimulated the detectives, but so far no clue to the perpetrators has been found.

LIFE WAS A FAILURE.

St. Louis, Oct. 10.—At an early hour this morning, John Gannell, aged 22 years, a medical student from Springfield, Mo., committed suicide in a yard in front of a residence at 2702 Dayton street, by firing a bullet through his heart. He left a note to the coroner stating that life was a failure.

GEN. ALGER.

He Talks on Politics While in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Gen. Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, was at the Grand Pacific yesterday. He spent a portion of the day with some friends in the city and left for Kansas City last night for the purpose of taking part in the campaign. The general predicted success for the republican party.

"With regard to Michigan," he said, "I should not be surprised if three or four districts go to the democrats. If this be the case, of course it will be the result of the gerrymander. The first district will be carried by the republicans, I believe, for the man nominated is one of the strongest candidates who could have been chosen.

"Even if the supreme court should declare the action of the legislature unconstitutional the decision will probably come too late to enable us to have the thing changed before the election is over."

GODFREY-CHOYNSKI.

Much Interest in the Coming Fight.

New York, Oct. 10.—The coming fight between Godfrey and Choynski, which is down for the 31st inst. under the auspices of the Coney Island Athletic club, is attracting considerable attention in sporting circles throughout the country, according to advices received by the management of the club, and a large attendance from out of town places is expected.

Secretary Eckhardt has received a telegram from Boston saying that a special train is being arranged to leave that city the day before the fight which will carry a large crowd of sports from that city. The train will make stops at Providence, New London, Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport, and will take on board a considerable contingent from the places mentioned.

MISSING FISHERMEN.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 10.—Of the six fishermen reported missing from the Gloucester schooner Henrietta, three were landed at Bay of Bulls, N. F., by the schooner Knight Templar, and the other three are reported to have been picked up by a Newfoundland schooner.

The Newfoundland schooner Reason has been missing since August 15, and is given up for lost, with a crew of ten men.

The schooner E. B. Phillips has collided with an unknown vessel, lumber laden. Her crew of nine men were lost.

Seven Newfoundland vessels were lost during a recent gale at Labrador.

JOHN SHERMAN ALARMED

He Sees Big Holes in the Republican Ship.

Afraid She Will Founder in November.

He Cautions the Members of His Party to Prevent the Loss of the United States Senate.

New York, Oct. 10.—Senator John Sherman arrived at the Fifth avenue hotel last night. He said in reference to the effect of the present political contest:

"I regard the election of a majority of republican senators as next in importance to the election of a republican president of the United States. The most careful attention should be given to the election of legislators and the selection of suitable candidates for the legislature of each state. It is probable that the election of a democratic president would carry with it the election of democratic senate and house, and if so place the whole government in the hands of the men bound to revolutionize our tariff laws.

"Our excellent financial policy would be changed so as to produce panic and desolation in all parts of the country.

"All the people of the United States are deeply interested in maintaining the principle of the present tariff laws, and a question of vital importance is the threatened overthrow of our system of currency by the introduction of state bank paper money, the effect of which would be to re-assert in an emphatic way the decline of state rights in respect to our currency."

CANADIAN AFFAIRS.

New Foundland May be Taken Into the Dominion.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 10.—While not forming part of th eprogram for which the approaching conference at Halifax has been called, it is now definitely known that an informal discussion will be entered into between the New Foundland and the Canadian delegates as to the most feasible grounds on which the colony of New Foundland can enter the Dominion.

It has been semi-officially intimated from New Foundland that in addition to the trade question a revival of the confederate scheme would be deplorable. So far as members of the cabinet here are concerened practically the only obstacle in the way of admission of the colony into the union is the French shore difficulty.

This objection can b eremoved only by Great Britain securing, by purchase or otherwise, the rights conceded to France in New Foundland, and it is stated that Mr. Gladstone favors the union with Canada and the withdrawal of France's interest in the colony which alone can accomplish it.

IN MEMORY OF PARNELL.

Dublin, Oct. 10.—The people who took part in the demonstration in honor of the late Charles S. Parnell, equaled in number those who attened his funeral a year ago. Thousands of visitors came to this city from Cork, Galway, and the north of Ireland. Floral tributes in the form of wreaths, harps, and other designs were received from political bodies throughout the country, and completely filled the memorial car and two carts. The procession to Parnell's tomb was accompanied by bands playing the dead march and the corporations of Dublin and Cork, who attended in state. J. J. O'Kelly delivered an oration at the grave.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Toledo, Ont., Oct. 10.—The residence of J. J. Luskey, sr., a farmer residing about four miles south of this place, was noticed to be on fire. Neighbors ran to the place at once and found both outside doors locked and the house all in flames on the inside. On breaking in the front door the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Luskey and their daughter were found on the floor at the foot of the stairs, burned beyond recognition. Mr. Luskey had been at Smith's Falls and was seen returning home half an hour before the fire broke out. An inquest will be held.

MOTOR CARS COLLIDE.

Canton, O., Oct. 10.—A north and south bound electric car collided on North Market street this morning owing to a heavy fog. The cars were demolished and Motormen David Henderson and Willard U. Tryon were severely injured. M. D. Spahr and John Meeckley, conductors, were cut and bruised, and C. R. Frazier, a passenger, was badly gashed about the head, and several others more or less hurt.

TO UNIONIZE THE TOWN.

Boston, Oct. 10.—At a meeting held here yesterday the members of Typographical Union 13, decided that all newspaper offices in Boston should be asked to pay on after October 17 the union scale of 45 cents per thousands ems.

LIZZIE BORDEN.

Much Testimony Unearthed by a Newspaper,

Which, If Unshaken on the Stand,

Will Be Very Bad for the Young Lady.

The Suspected Girl Had a Secret of Her Own.

The Most Sensational Statement Yet Made in the Now Famous New England Case.

Boston, Oct. 10.—The Globe this morning prints a dozen columns of the stories of the 20 witnesses, in the Borden murder case, who have given affidavits to the government. Some of these stories are of an alarming nature and are as follows:

Mr. Frank Burroughs, a well-known New York city lawyer, will testify that eight months before the murder occurred Lizzie Borden consulted him about the disposition of property in the event of a step-mother's death before that of her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Chase and Mrs. Abigail Manchester will testify that on the night before the murder, while calling at the Borden house, they had overheard Mr. Borden in another room threatening to turn Lizzie out of doors unless she would repeat the name of the man who "got her into trouble."

Mr. G. Romaine Pittston, a wealthy dealer in machinery supplies in New York, will testify that Mr. Borden detailed Lizzie's trouble to him and was advised to disinherit her unless she would reveal the man's name.

John H. Murphy, Mrs. Gustave F. Ronald, Peter Mahany and August Gunning will testify to having seen Lizzie Borden at a window, where and when she must have been standing over the dead body of her step-mother at the time when her father was walking in the yard.

Mrs. George J. Simpson will testify that at the Borden funeral she overheard Lizzie asking Bridget Sullivan, the servant, how much money she wanted to keep quiet.

Private Detective McHenry will testify that, lying concealed in a bathroom, he witnessed the quarrel in the matron's room between the sisters and that Lizzie kicked Emma three times, called her a foul name and said: "You wanted to see me hanged so you can come into the entire fortune. You are the one person whom I thought I could trust with my secret."

Mrs. Regan, the matron and others have deposed to the same effect.

The Globe promises to publish a certain piece of very important information recently gained by Officer Harrington, as soon as the interests of justice will not suffer by its publication.

CROP REPORTS.

What the Department of Agriculture Has to Say.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The agricultural department crop report issued to-day is as follows: The statistician of the department of agriculture reports a reduction of 3 1-2 points in the general percentage of the condition of cotton from 76.8 in September to 73.3 in October. The deterioration is heaviest in South Carolina and least in Texas. Virginia has maintained its condition better than any other Atlantic state. The percentages are: Virginia, 71; North Carolina, 69; South Carolina, 73; Georgia, 75; Florida, 63; Alabama, 69; Mississippi, 72; Louisiana, 71; Texas, 77; Arkansas, 74; Tennessee, 75.

Rain in the early part of September and cool nights later have caused the rotting of immature bolls in North Carolina and South Carolina. The crop is maturing somewhat better in Georgia, though excess of moisture in the southern counties has been injurious. The low condition of Florida cotton in September has been further depressed by heavy rainfall, which has delayed picking.

The low status of the Alabama breadth is the result of warm weather, insufficent cultivation, disproportionate growth of stalks, fruit and rotting of young bolls. Somewhat more favorable influence in Mississippi gave rise to more cheerful reports. Louisiana cotton is very late and unpromising from excessive moisture through the season to September 15, and cool nights which discourages predictions of late planters.

There is less complaint and discouragement in Texas than in any state. Areas planted late in Arkansas are very unpromising though recent favorable weather is rapidly opening the early bolls.

Favorable weather has recently succeeded the heavy rains in Tennessee and bolls are beginning to open. A late and favorable autumn can alone dispel the prevailing discouragement. The boll worm is most frequently mentioned west of the Mississippi. The caterpillar has wrought some injury in the southern belt.

Insect ravages will have less influence in reducing the crop than unfavorable weather conditions.

FOUR MEN KILLED.

Clarksburg, Va., Oct. 10.—A shifting train on the new West Virginia & Pittsburg railway became unmanageable on heavy grade near Weston and ranaway. In rounding a sharp curve the wild train suddenly ran into a work car, on which were six men, striking it with such force that the men were hurled sixty feet, and the most of them were shockingly mangled. John Curran, a superintendent in the employ of the Youngstown Bridge company, James Lawrence, Pascobe Parises, and a laborer whose name was not learned, were killed.

PUSHING A RAILROAD.

Bucyrus, Oct. 10.—The grading of the Sandusky & Columbus short line between Bucyrus and Sandusky was completed today. This makes the entire bed ready for the rails as far south as Bucyrus. The track layers on the north have reached Honey Creek, 12 miles north of Bucyrus, and are expected to reach this city by November 1. On the south the rails have reached the county line, ten miles from this city, and efforts are being made to close up the entire gap by November 15.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Alliance, O., Oct. 10.—Jacob Freid, aged 25 years, was killed by a freight train on the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway. He alighted from a moving freight train on an adjoining track in time to be struck. He was horribly mangled and killed instantly. His wife lives in Minerva.

HONORS FOR CRESPO.

He Takes Control of the Government

And Makes Public His New Cabinet.

Senor Andrade Has Been Made Governor of the City of Caracas.

New York, Oct. 10.—A cable to the Herald from La Guayra says Gen. Srespo was accorded an enthusiastic reception upon his triumphal entry into Caracas yesterday.

The streets were illuminated and the crowd cheered wildly. Crespo marched into the capital in the morning at the head of the remainder of his army. When he reached the congress building he summoned his leaders, and after a conference was proclaimed provisional president of the republic.

He is to hold the office until the regularly elected congressmen meet.

Crespo promptly issued a pronunciamento naming his cabinet as follows:

Foreign affairs—Pedro Ezequiel Rojas.
Interior—Leon Colina.
Finance—Senor Pietri.
War—Guzman Alvarez.
Public works—Munoz Tebar.
Instruction—Silva Gudolphy.
Chief of police—Gen. Victor Roderiquez.
Chief of telegraphs—Leopolda Babtista.
General in chief—Ramon Guerra.
Governor of Caracas—Senor Andrade.

The rumor concerning the escape of Villegas Pulido and his ministers is confirmed. They sailed for Martinique.

Another body of Crespist soldiers entered La Guayra yesterday.

THE O. Y. C. BUGABOO.

The Members Get a Club and Kill It.

The Debt That Hung On Like the Little Old Man of the Sea Has Been Dislodged At Last.

It is said that riches sometimes takes wings and flies away, but the Ohio Yacht club has demonstrated that the opposite can be the case. The O. Y. C. has been a jolly, good-natured sort of a club, but has never felt rich for the reason that a good-sized debt has been hanging over its head all the time. The club has provided many good times for its members and friends in the past, but it has never done as much as it desired. The debt has been the bugaboo. Whenever the matter of a social gathering was up and the expense was being discussed, the boys were cautioned to go slow on account of the debt. There has always been plenty and to spare, but the club has never given itself full swing heretofore; everything has been done with an eye to economy. Grand ideas have been evolved in the club rooms, and gigantic pleasure schemes have been born to be laid on the table until the dreaded debt was blotted out. So matters progressed. A few days ago a few of the officers got together and talked over the debt, which amounts to something over $1,000. It was decided to take immediate steps to wipe it out. The matter was brought to the attention of the members. They were asked to subscribe for that purpose. A committee was appointed to solicit, but its labors were as naught, for the members sought the solicitors and planked down the cash, and in a remarkably short time within a few hundred dollars of the required sum was secured and the total amount will be forthcoming before the eighth annual meeting, Friday evening next.

At the coming meeting the club will find itself free from the bugaboo. Officers will be elected and committees appointed that will make the organization hum. This season's entertainments will lay over everything before attempted for the club is now rich.

There will be considerable excitement in the election of a commodore, as there are a number of popular candidates. There should be a full representation at the meeting that every one may have their say.

ST. MARYS.

Young Farmer Who Tried to Swindle a Woman.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 10.—(Special)—Perry Wright, a prominent young Mercer county farmer, was arrested at the instigation of Miss Ella Shipman, of Celina, for obtaining money under false pretenses. Recently he approached Miss Shipman and asked her for a loan of $35. This she agreed to do, upon condition that she was to receive a note for the amount, payable in 30 days, with 8 per cent. interest. He gave her the note, and represented it to her as being what she requested. She presented the note for payment, and was informed of its worthlessness, the note reading 30 years without interest, instead of 30 days with interest.

Tom and Daniel Hendershot, two more of the Greer-Brandon gang of robbers, were captured while camping near the reservoir, and lodged in jail at Celina. These arrests almost complete the chapter of depredations that this band has committed.

BURIED UNDER SLATE.

Brazil, Ind., Oct. 10.—John Dickson, a young miner, was probably fatally injured by the roof or the room in the mine in which he was working giving away and burying him under about six tons of slate.

HOMESTEAD TREASON CASES.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—The treason cases against the advisory committee of the Homestead strikers will be taken up by the grand jury to-day. Chief Justice Paxson, of the state supreme court, will deliver the charge to the jury.

THE NEW MARINE BAND.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—Col. Heywood, commandant at the marine barracks here, is indignant because Prof. Sousa calls his new organization in Chicago "The New Marine Band." He proposes to try to make trouble for Sousa if he holds on to the name.

SERIOUS CHARGES.

E. L. Bates Bound Over for Trial in Paulding.

Paulding, Oct. 10.—(Special.)—A very smooth man, who is charged with working the farmers of this and other counties, has just been arrested here.

Last fall E. L. Bates bought a lot of stock in this county and paid for it with checks on the Paulding Deposit bank.

When the checks were presented they were found to be worthless as he had no money in the bank.

A few days ago it was learned that he was living in Logan county and Sheriff Staley succeeded in capturing him.

Bates is a very smooth individual and has managed to escape the penitentiary on other occasions. He buys stock and pays for it with checks on some bank; these checks he always dates a few days ahead so that no criminal proceedings can be brought against him, and the most his victims can do is to get judgments against him. He was bound over in the sum of $1,500.

SWIFT WILL BUILD

Another Beef Concern Next to Armour's.

The Hammond Company Will Commence to Run Cars Into Toledo October 15.

Just now there are quite a number of changes going on among the dressed beef concerns in this city. The new building of the Hammond company on Ontario street has been completed and the company will commence running cars into Toledo about October 15.

The Wells Beef company, which has heretofore had an agency in this city, will pull out of the race, and its business will be taken up by the Hammond people.

Armour and Hammond, however, will not have full swing here, for a formidable rival has shown itself on the local horizon, in fact has settled down and anchored. The Swift dressed beef concern of Chicago will locate here. The company has purchased the piece of ground next to Armour's establishment on Erie street, and will erect a handsome building at once. The Swift people handle more beef than Armour; the latter concern runs more to pork. The companies feel that there is room in Toledo for them all, and the hustling for business will soon commence.

BOLLANE'S CASE.

He May Have Trouble Getting Out of Jail.

New York, Oct. 10.—It is doubtful whether the case of Robert Bollane, whose release from prison is sought on a writ of habeas corpus, can be reached in the court of sessions to-day. The railroad expert has been confined in the Tombs on a charge of stealing letters and account books from several railroads; that he had been guilty of violating the interstate commerce law in selling the same to various newspapers. R. C. Kerens has come on from St. Louis to argue the writ in Bollane's behalf, and some sensational developments are expected.

WILLIAMS COUNTY.

The Republicans Place a Ticket in the Field.

Bryan, O., Oct. 10.—(Special.)—Williams county republicans met in convention at Montpelier Saturday and selected the following ticket: John M. Killits, prosecuting attorney; John F. Hamet, commissioner; George F. Dick, infirmary director; Dr. L. A. Beard, coroner; Judge Levi W. Brown, United States consul to Glasgow, Scotland, delivered a speech. There was a good attendance.

O. C. Ashton is visiting his brother, James, and family.

CAN'T KILL MULES.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 10.—A month ago the Twin mine at Pittston caught fire. Miners had a narrow escape with their lives. Forty mules in the mines it was thought perished. To-day access was gained to the mine for the first time since the fire. Twenty-three of the mules were dead and 17 alive and well. The live ones devoured the feed troughs and then fell back on the stuffing in their collars. Three mules kicked down the stable and feasted on hay. The mules will not be brought out of the mine right away as it would endanger their lives. They will be fed on meal and whisky for a few days.

BUT SHE DIDN'T.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 10.—There was a sensational scene in the court room of the court of common pleas in Kansas City, Kan. When Judge Anderson had sentenced Thomas Monroe to two and a half years in the penitentiary for assault with intent to kill, his wife, who was sitting by his side, attempted to give him the contents of a small vial containing strychnine, which she took from the pocket of her dress.

DEATHS IN FOSTORIA.

Fostoria, O., Oct. 10.—(Special)—Widely-known Frederick Sellers, aged 75 years, a pioneer of Seneca county, who resided seven miles northeast of Tiffin, died suddenly of heart disease at the home of his son, six miles north of this city.

A 12-year-old son of Godfrey Houk has died of diphtheria. His parents moved here from Tiffin a week ago.

TOO LATE TO SAVE IT.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10.—The Germania, the organ of the German Lutherans of Wisconsin, comes out flat-footed for John C. Spooner and John C. Koch. A greater political sensation, and one so far-reaching in its effects, was never before known in the history of Wisconsin. The paper editorially denounces Peck.

PEN INVESTIGATION WANTED.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 10.—Two members of the state board of charities, Dr. Thomas G. Morton, of this city, and James B. Scott, of Pittsburg, have presented two petitions to Judge Fell asking for an investigation of the condition and treatment of insane prisoners in the eastern penitentiary here.

ALLOWED TO LAND.

Quarantine, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The steerage passengers of the steamer Bohemia, who were detained at Hoffman island for observation, were allowed to land Saturday. One hundred and forty-six immigrants from the steamship Polaria, who had been held in quarantine, were also transferred to Ellis island Saturday.

VARNISH EXPLOSION.

Pomeroy, O., Oct. 10.—A barrel of varnish in J. T. Williams' boiler works at Middleport, caught fire from a lamp and exploded, burning him so badly that his recovery is doubtful, and destroying the building. Loss about $1,500, with no insurance.

WOULD-BE MURDERER.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 10.—John Ryan, a molder, attempted to murder his wife, while under the influence of liquor. He shot her in the left breast, and then put a bullet into Joseph Ryan, his cousin, who attempted to defend the woman. Both victims are dangerously wounded. Ryan was arrested.

THE SEASON OPENS.

Canton, O., Oct. 10.—Albert Kunage, of Wilmot, while hunting near Killbuck, had a portion of his right hand blown off, his left hand lacerated and his head and face filled with shot. He is in a precarious condition.

CLOSED UP.

Logan, O., Oct. 10.—Boskin & Wolinsky, clothing merchants, were closed up on a mortgage held by the People's and the First National banks. Liabilities about $6,000; assets between $7,000 and $8,000.

HEMORRHAGE OF THE NOSE

Pontiac, Mich., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Gilbert W. Lee died very suddenly at the Hammond farm, on Orchard Lake avenue, from hemorrhage at the nose. Mrs. Lee was the eldest daughter of the late Geo. H. Hammond.

CAMPAIGNING.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Secretary Foster starts out on a campaign tour to-day. This week he will make several speeches in New York state, and thence will go to Ohio, Indiana and Nebraska.

UP AND DOING ALREADY

Toledo Conductors Arranging for the Convention.

A Committee Representing the Various Local Roads Appointed Yesterday.

The members of Toledo Division Order of Railway Conductors met yesterday to take the initiatory steps in the arrangements for the international convention of the O. R. C. in Toledo next May. The fact that the convention would be held here and other matters pertaining thereto has already been given in the Bee.

The conductors and their ladies will be here in numbers up in the thousands from all over the country, and it is desired to entertain in a manner that will put the efforts of Chicago, New Orleans, Boston, Louisville, etc., where former conventions have been held, in the shade. To do this about $3,000 must be raised.

The following local committee was appointed yesterday to take the matter in hand:

Volney Ryan of the Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City, chairman.
E. W. Purrett of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo road.
A. E. Kline, of the Pennsylvania.
Richard Kirkby of the Wabash.
R. H. Wilds, of the Toledo, Columbus & Cincinnati.
James Collins of the C., H. & D.
James McMillan of the Clover Leaf.
F. J. Stout of the Lake Shore.
Dwight McKee of the Lake Shore.
E. R. Myers of the Lake Shore.
Harry Gray of the Toledo and Ohio Central.
R. H. Manning of the T., A. A. & N. M.
A. E. Lettner of the Wheeling & Lake Erie

The committee will commence operations at once. They are confident that Toledoans will see the advantages that will arise from entertaining such a large body of conductors, who will spread the fame of the Future Great all over the country.

AMUSEMENTS.

Revival of the Planter's Wife by Harry Lacy.

One of the Bravest at the People's This Week—Wonderland.

The Planter's Wife.

With Mr. Harry Lacy assisted by Miss Emily Rigl, will be the attraction at Wheeler's to-night and to-morrow. Mr. Lacy will enact his original part in that sterling drama; a play that he has made famous in England as weel as in this country. It has been presented over one thousand times, and wherever given was pronounced to be one of the very best American war dramas ever written. Mr. Lacy will have the valuable assistance of Miss Emily Rigl, whose superiority as an intense emotional actress is universally conceded. She is as handsome as she is talented, and as graceful as she is impressively dramatic. In the support of Mr. Lacy and Miss Rigl will be seen Misses Marion Keith, Marie Doran, Kate Hawthorne, Messrs. William Walker, Harold Hartsell and George Hager. Mr. Lacy is a masterly artist of the romantic school of acting. To exceptional histrionic ability he unites a fine personal presence, a pleasing voice and an inborn magnetism that sways audiences to his will. In "The Planter's Wife" he sustains the role of a brave southern colonel—a character that suits his powers admirably. The drama itself is one of absorbing interest, stormy at times, soothing and amusing at others. In every act there is a blending of forceful scenes with light comedy episodes.

At the People's.

Charles McCarthy in "One of the Bravest" will be the attraction at the People's theater all this week. This play has been seen in Toledo several times and always draws big houses. It is popular everywhere and is a big paying show. Many improvements have been made this season and a number of new specialties have been introduced. One of the big hits in "One of the Bravest" is a new song sung by Master La Martine and little Helen entitled "Says Grover to Ben." They have recived encores by the dozen from audiences everywhere.

Wonderland.

Seymore, the mind reader, will be the attraction at Wonderland all this week and he will perform some wonderful tests. Besides his performance, a good program is to be presented on the stage and curio hall is full of attractions.

SHE'S AFTER THE WORLD.

Mis Harriett Monroe Says Her Copyright Was Violated.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Miss Harriett Monroe believes that sh eha cause for action against the New York World. It is aid that as soon as the dedicatory ceremonies of the Columbian exposition are over and the commemoration ode has been publicly given, Mis Monroe will bring suit against the New York paper, charging violation of the copyright act. She was much displeased because of the unauthorized publication of the ode in the World and did everything in her power to prevent it. Since then she has investigated to find means of redress, and has been assured that she has a clear case against the publishers. Miss Monroe says the World printed her ode in a garbled form on September 25, regardless of her notification that the matter was copyrighted.

ANOTHER COMBINATION.

Brake Beam Manufacturers to Pull Together.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—A consolidation of steel brake beam manufacturing industries has just been effected.

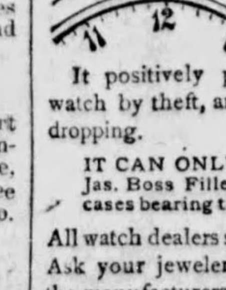
There are but three companies engaged in the business, the largest being in this city, with another at Chicago and one at Pittsburg. The purpose of the combanation is to bring about, it is said, a uniformity of prce and reducton of expenses. The move will go into effect October 15, but no immediate change in the manufacture will b emade. the works at the three cities above mentioned being operated as branches. This plan will probably be carried out the first year, when there may be a centralization at Detroit. The total capital invested is about $2,500,000.

READING COMBINE.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 8.—Examiners Bergner and McAlarney met to-day in the Dauphin county library for the purpose of taking further testimony in the commonwealth's suit against the Reading "combine."

Non-pull-out

is an arbitrary word used to designate the only bow (ring) which cannot be pulled off the watch.



Here's the idea

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant (stem) and fits into the grooves, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

It positively prevents the loss of the watch by theft, and avoids injury to it from dropping.

IT CAN ONLY BE HAD with Jas. Boss Filled or other watch cases bearing this trade mark—

All watch dealers sell them without extra cost. Ask your jeweler for pamphlet, or send to the manufacturers.

A Woman Who Suffered.

HOW SHE FOUND RELIEF.

Read this Account of the Use of a Simple, Harmless Remedy.

SCOTTSVILLE, PA., March 18, 1892.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY:

Dear Sir—From the time I was thirteen years old, I have been afflicted with female trouble or weakness peculiar to my sex, a sickness prevalent to women. I was a great sufferer; during this long term of years I doctored with several different physicians and found no relief; was so reduced in strength and flesh that I weighed but 68 lbs. I chanced not long ago to learn of the wonderful cures Dr David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was performing and I determined to try it; the first bottle produced marked improvement, and after taking five bottles of Favorite Remedy I was almost a well woman and weighed 121 1-2 lbs. "JUST THINK OF IT, MY SUFFERING SISTERS," such a gain in weight and better in health than I ever was. I can not urge you too strongly to use this great medicine of Dr. Kennedy's. A fair trial will always produce the happiest results. I feel that in a little while I will be as strong as any woman alive.

IT MADE ME WELL

Yours respectfully,
MRS. CARRIE BOUTON.

Ladies, don't be discouraged and give up in despair, good health can be gained by using Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It will cure the most complicated of female sicknesses

WAYSIDE PICKINGS.

Only a Tramp.

It happened at a little wayside station, called North East, between Dunkirk and Erie, on Saturday.

Lake Shore train No. 5, west bound, was making 50 miles an hour easily. There was a series of shrieks from the engine followed by a sudden application of the brakes, but few if any paid any attention to what is a common occurrence on the flyer.

A Chicago gentleman was entertaining a few of us with interesting reminiscences of the Chicago fire when the porter entered.

"What are we stopping here for?" some one asked.

"Nothin'—struck a man," was the laconic reply.

"Hurt him badly?"

"Naw—just killed him."

We hustled out of the car but could see no evidence of the accident.

The train was backing slowing down towards the bridge.

"Where is the man who was struck?" the conductor was asked.

"Over there in the ditch," and he nodded carelessly in the direction indicated.

We stepped across the track in front of the engine and as we did so one of the party exclaimed:

"My God, look at this!"

Two old shoes, one containing the foot and part of a leg, and the other empty, but covered with blood, lay beside the track.

In the ditch at the foot of the embankment on the opposite side of the track lay, face downwards, the body of a man. One foot was gone.

A woman and two little boys stood near and two trainmen who had straightened out the mangled figure, were washing their hands at a little pool of water near by.

"Is he dead?"

"Dead, well, I should say so."

Some one turned the face upwards. It was that of a youngish man about 35 years of age.

We returned to the car wondering why all the officials from the engineer down looked so unconcerned.

"He is only some poor devil of a tramp," the porter said, in reply to a question.

A couple of men were walking leisurely down from the little depot to the scene of the accident.

"See that, he's moved out of that," the conductor said to one of them as they passed and then gave the signal to go ahead.

We saw the body as we passed; the two boys stood near the body and the woman was climbing the fence which separated the railroad from her cabin.

"Only a tramp," the Chicagoan repeated, "and yet some poor mother may mourn for many a long day for her absent boy. It is pitiable."

"Oh, its nothing, sir," the porter interrupted. "We get used to it. The other day we killed a woman near Sandusky and she was all cut up. Do you know I've seen dozens killed just as that one was killed, and it is strange that in every case their shoes were found far away from the body, sometimes, too, when the feet and legs were uninjured? In the woman's case her shoes, still tied as when on her feet, were found 40 feet from the body.

"The worst accident we had in a month," he continued, "was the other day near Rochester, when we killed a man and a horse. They ran into us and tore off the steps of the ladies' coach. When we picked them up you could not tell which was the man and which the horse."

ORDER OF VESTA.

It Has Made an Assignment at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—An assignment for the benefit of its creditors has been made by the order of Vesta, an organization which differed from Iron Hall only in the moderation of its promises of profit. Officers of the order say there is about $135,000 remaining in the assessment fund which would be sufficient, after paying the costs and fees incident to the assignment, to each of the membersdliu assignment, to enable the assignee to pay back to each of the members in good standing 15 per cent. more than each had paid in. The membership is placed at about 1,000, scattered through 40 subordinate lodges in nine different states. The bulk of the membership is said to be in Richmond, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Poughkeepsie.

ESCAPED FROM AN ASYLUM.

A New York Millionaire Roaming at Large.

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 10.—Arthur A. Beckwith, a reputed New York millionaire, who has been under treatment for a mild form of insanity at Buell's sanitarium, Litchfield, has made his escape from that institution.

He was traced to Thomaston, Northfield, and thence to this city. A large reward is offered for him and detectives are working hard to get it.

When he escaped he had considerable money, a gold watch and a diamond ring. He is described as 43 years of age, five feet three inches high, slim, dark, with dark moustache and side whiskers, and wore, when last seen, a gray sack coat and vest and dark pants, black overcoat and soft hat.

CONFLAGRATION.

Jackson, Tenn., Oct. 8.—Fire last night destroyed the furniture store of W. Bensinger & Sons. Loss on building and contents $25,000; insurance $16,000. The Evening Times office was badly damaged by water. Origin of fire unknown.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Bellefontaine, Pa., Oct. 8.—Alexander Hoover, aged 35, son of David Hoover of this place, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head at the Pennsylvania railroad depot here to-day.

TOOK MORPHINE.

Suicide of a Prominent Milwaukee Railroad Man.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10.—Levant W. Judd, of Milwaukee, agent of the West Shore freight line, died yesterday in his room in the Norman Flat building on Grand avenue, from the effects of morphine.

He was a single man about 30 years of age and was well known in the city. In a letter to Thomas M. Fairburn, agent of the Illinois Central line, he asked him to ship his body to his old home at Ypsilanti, Mich., where he has relatives living. His brother will arrive from Michigan to-day to take the body home. Judd left no explanation for his suicide.

MORMONS.

Sixty-Second Annual Conference at Salt Lake.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 10.—The sixty-second semi-annual conference of the Mormon church closed Saturday, with 15,000 in attendance at the closing session. The reports of the various stakes in Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona and Mexico showed a total membership of over 200,000.

Joseph F. Smith, whose recent return from a seven years' sojourn underground, marked the origin of national party lines, delivered an address.

It was decided to dedicate the new temple on April 6, 1893. This building was commenced 40 years ago, and has cost $2,500,00.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 8.—A freight train on the New England road was wrecked last night just east of Oneco, Conn. Many cars were piled along the side of the track and traffic was blocked for several hours. The loss will amount to thousands of dollars. No one was injured.

WEAVER IN PULASKI.

Pulaski, Tenn., Oct. 8.—Gen. Weaver arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning. He was met by nearly 150 members of the people's party who, with a brass band, escorted him to the fair grounds, where the speaking is to take place. The democratic committee of Giles county has had 35 extra police appointed to preserve order. It is not expected that any serious disturbance will occur to-day.

SPAIN'S RULERS.

Huelva, Oct. 10.—The Spanish warship bearing the king and queen of Spain, to participate in the Columbus celebration, arrived here to-day. Their majesties were greeted by an outturning of the whole populace, every mark of enthusiasm being displayed. The city is en fete and rejoicing is general.

DIED AT SEA.

New York, Oct. 10.—The steamer Chicago, from Antwerp, which arrived yesterday, reports that on October 4th, Seaman Andrew Holland was taken ill and died suddenly, cause unknown. He was buried at sea. Deputy Health Officer Sanborn held the steamer for further examination and disinfection.

ENGINEER GEAR DEAD.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Intelligence was received last night of the death at Charleston, S. C., of George C. Geer, who was engineer of the Monitor in the engagement with the Merrimac during the war.

SILVA IS ILL.

New York, Oct. 10.—A cable to the Herald from Valparaiso says that Waldo Silva, who was president of the revolutionary junta which waged its successful war against the late President Balmaceda, is very ill and it is feared may die.

PACKER RYAN DEAD.

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 10.—James M Ryan, the Gelena pork packer, well-known in produce exchange circles throughout the country, died of heart failure on a street car here last night. He leaves six children.

ALMOST ASPHYXIATED.

Dayton, O., Oct. 10.—Evan Jones, of Jackson, O., father of Representative Jones, of that place, narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation in his room at the Dickey house.

HI HENRY DYING.

Gowanda, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Word has been received here that Hi Henry, the old time musician and minstrel, is dying at Cleveland. His show life extended over 40 years.

DROWNED WHILE YACHTING.

Canandaigua, N. Y., Oct. 10.—While sailing on Lake Canandaigua yesterday Allen Smith, of Clifton Springs, was drowned by the boat capsizing. His three companions clung to the boat until rescued.

HECKER NOMINATED.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—Colonel F. J. Hecker was nominated by the republicans of the first district here for congress.

A MAGNIFICENT PRIZE CONTEST.

In what year was the famous old "Liberty Bell" first rung in Philadelphia?

The Home Jewel will give an elegant Chickering pure-toned, upright piano to the first person answering the above question correctly; two first-class round-trip railroad tickets to Chicago and return and admission tickets for two to World's Fair grounds to witness dedication of buildings October 21, 1892, for each of next two correct answers; a gold decorated China dinner set for the fourth correct answer.

An additional special prize, a beautiful pair of gold and pearl opera glasses, will be given for the first correct answer from each state. Each person answering must send fifteen two-cent stamps for 6 mos. subscription to The Home Jewel, the illustrated family paper containing particulars of our prize competition for a free trip to California or Florida. The object of offering these prizes is to increase the circulation of this excellent family paper. Send to-day and you may secure a costly prize. Names of all prize-winners in October number. Write plainly name, post-office, express office, county and state. Address The Home Jewel, Suite 601, Manhattan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

A meeting of the Toledo Union Temperance association will be held at the Davis Business college on Wednesday evening. A large attendance is expected.

Mrs. Fay, while descending the steps at St. Patrick's institute yesterday, fell and fractured her right hip. A physician was called and reduced the fracture.

Mary P. Hallaran, guardian of Mary and John S. Hallaran, sued Christian Essenbaum et al., in common pleas court to-day to recover $1,392.25 on a note.

This morning a little girl, whose name could not be learned, was run over and slightly injured by a delivery wagon at the corner of Broadway and Logan street.

The working band of the First Congregational church met at 1 o'clock this afternoon for sewing. The ladies are furnishing some beds in the Y. W. C. A. building.

The International Association of Machinists, No. 105, will hold an open meeting in Carpenter's hall next Wednesday evening to be addressed by the general foreman.

Good judges drink Kohler's Spring '78.

Ladies Aid society of St. John's M. E. church give a reception on Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5, in the church parlors, for the lady members and friends of the congregation.

Annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of St. John's church at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Hawthorne, lower Huron street, next Friday afternoon.

The republican campaign committee has appointed the following finance committee: M. I. Wilcox, J. P. Brown, J. C. Bonner, G. G. Major, H. A. Merrill, J. W. Hahn, and C. W. Everett.

Merrill, Ring & Co. have 2,000,000 feet of lumber on the O. C. docks, and as much more is expected to arrive between this and Saturday. The firm can give employment just now to about 100 men.

Harry Tiedtke will lead the young men's meeting to be held in the Junior rooms of the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 8 o'clock. The subject of the meeting is "Believe and Confess." Young men who attend will receive a cordial welcome.

A very interesting meeting of the Christian Endeavors of the First Congregational church was held in the church parlors last evening, led by Miss Jennie Babcock, on the subject, "What can we learn from Dorcas?"

A meeting of the Columbus day celebration committees, sub and general, will be held to-night at the mayor's office. Secretary Campbell has notified all members, and a full attendance is desired, as the time is growing very short.

Mr. John Garvin, of the Bee news-room, has just attained his majority and as a souvenir of the event his good mother has presented him with an elegant gold watch and charm. "Johnny" is a little proud to-day, but his pride is pardonable.

Local members of the Ohio National Guard association met on Saturday evening and discussed several matters. An invitation will be extended to the state body to meet in the new armory for the annual gathering, and Toledo will see that their guests are properly taken care of.

There was a large attendance at both meetings at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The fall campaign opens up with vigor. Percy Turner and Ralph Collamore will prove an energetic team, and should have the support of the entire membership.

The ladies of the working band of the First Congregational church will hold their first reception for the season on the evening of Friday, October 14, in the church parlors. The members of the congregation and their friends are cordially invited to attend. Supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock.

The Toledo Steam Laundry Co. are noted for doing only first-class work.

Judge Charles Bentley, of Toledo, has consented to make an address to the pupils and general public on the evening of the 21st in honor of the 400th anniversary. The schools will furnish the music and two or three literary exercises. We consider the schools very fortunate in having secured so ably and scholarly a man as Judge Bentley is known to be.—Bowling Green Tribune.

Fox Gets a $7,000 Verdict.

The jury in the case of Fox against the Pennsylvania railway company returned a verdict this morning in common pleas court, allowing the plaintiff $7,000 damages. This is $2,000 less than the other verdict.

Long Distance Telephone.

The long distance telephone line from Toledo to New York has been given a trial test and found almost perfect. The local officials are in New York to-day. On their return shortly the booths will be located about the city and the line opened up to the public.

The Matter of Registration.

Thursday will be the first day of registration in Toledo, and it is to be hoped that democrats at least will be interested enough to see that their names are registered. Polls will be open from 8 to 1 and from 4 to 9 p. m. during the four days. Every voter must register or he cannot vote at the election.

Frank Thomas After Wood.

In common pleas court to-day Frank W. Thomas sued Geo. W. Wood to recover $2,000 damages. Wood is under arrest at Columbus charged with depositing stolen saving stamps with the Ohio State Building and Loan company of that city. Thomas claims these stamps were stolen from his printing office.

Dante Circle Meeting.

The Dante circle meets this evening with the president, Mrs. Foley.

The order of exercises is the full discussion of three cantos from Dante, each member being assigned a canto, on which she is to thoroughly post herself.

The meetings are not only very interesting, but very instructive.

The circle meets every Monday evening with Mrs. Foley.

More Buildings Condemned.

The following additional buildings have been condemned by the health authorities:

The blacksmith shop at 113 Oak street, the frame buildings at 406 and 408 Front street, and the frame at 103 Oak street. The ten days' notice has been served on the owners of Hotel Montreal, and the structure will probably come down without delay.

Not Hung—But Very Near It.

A sailor on the steamer Wocoken, which is loading coal at the Pennsylvania docks, came near hanging himself without judge or jury. He got in the way of the hatch-rope, which wound around his neck and swung him up into mid-air. Fortunately the rope broke and he was dropped just inside the railing of the deck. His neck was badly cut, and his escape was a lucky one.

Checking Up Lumber Rates.

Messrs. H. J. Booth of the Wheeling, C. C. Gridley of the Hocking, Frank James of the Pennsylvania, W. S. Weed of the Clover Leaf, Hudson Fitch of the T. & O. C., and C. T. Wight of the B. & O., will go to Chicago to-night to be present to-morrow at the meeting of the lumber committee. Rates on lumber have not been checked up for two years in this territory and the meeting is called for that purpose.

On a Fishing Trip.

Messrs. Sanfleet, Rev. Sloan, Major McLyman, Tippel, Felker and others leave this afternoon for a fishing trip to Fremont. The party will take a tug from Fremont to a point 12 miles down the river, and to-morrow morning will greet the sun with several tons of black bass. The party proposes cornering the fish market, and Arthur Howell won't be in it.

Sunday School Services Resumed.

Sunday afternoon, the members of the Young Women's Christian Temperance union resumed the Sunday school services at the Helping Hand mission, with Miss Louise Bond a superintendent, and Miss Wallick, secretary.

The class is large and the young women are hopeful of doing great good among the residents of this vicinity and the frequenters of the mission.

A Box for the Worthy Poor.

The Alida Freeman circle of King's Daughters is meeting at the home of Mrs. Waldron, this afternoon, the object being the packing of a box of comforts, warm clothing and other gifts for worthy but destitute people in the Indian territory.

In a quiet and unobtrusive way these noble young women are doing many noble deeds of which little is heard or known.

Four Chinese Regestered Here Just the Same.

Yesterday the Cincinnati Enquirer had a long and labored article showing that not a single Chinaman had as yet taken out his certificate of citizenship, as called upon by law.

The Enquirer is way off. Some time ago four Chinamen in this district registered and complied with the law. These were the first to register in this country, and since then four others in California have taken out certificates.

Merry Time for the Orphans.

The circle of King's Daughters of which Mrs. Bolles is president, has for several years been in the habit of having a picnic every summer at the Orphans' home.

For various reasons it was delayed this year, until too late for outdoor sports, so on Saturday last a parlor performance was arranged.

There ws music, tableaux and recitations, and refreshments were served, making a thoroughly enjoyable time for the little ones.

Reunion of the C. Es.

Mr. Harry Tiedtke conducted the meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at the First Presbyterian church last night.

Delegations from the societies of the various churches were present, and reports of the work accomplished during the past year were received.

The music was fine and the reports very encouraging.

The Christian Endeavorers are in earnest in their efforts for the betterment of society.

Will Continue the Song Services.

There was a large attendance at the song and prayer service at Trinity last evening, and the able address of Rev. Manning, of St. James church, Toronto, Canada, was greatly enjoyed.

Rev. Scadding said that the audiences had so increased in number since the introduction of this service, the responses were so much more hearty, and the interest so deep, that they would be continued during the winter.

The service is in no sense a performance, he said, but a real heart worship.

Hasn't Missed the Baby Yet.

The woman who left the baby at the Humane office last week, has not missed it yet, or at least has given no sign that she has.

The article in an evening paper intimating that Miss Foster was deceived because of her youth and inexperience, is hardly correct. The young lady in question performs her duties faithfully, and the affair is one that might have happened, no matter how ancient or experienced the clerk.

Such inhuman mothers are, fortunately, not common.

Contagious Diseases Reported.

There have been quite a large number of contagious diseases reported to the health department of late. Following is the record of the past week up to to-day: Diphtheria at corner of Monroe and Detroit, 321 Field avenue, 722 South Erie street, corner Forrer and Ralph streets, 735 Erie street, 523 Lagrange street.

Typhoid fever at 2109 Union street, 411 Dorr street, 811 Ontario, 303 Nebraska avenue, corner Indiana and Detroit avenues.

Scarlet fever at 411 West Lafayette street (two cases), 1406 Washington; 505 Platt street, 1342 Page street, 656 Hamilton street.

Will Give a Charity Ball.

The Day Nursery company held a meeting at the Nursery Saturday afternoon, received reports of committees, and completed arrangements for the charity ball to be given in Pythian castle on the evening of October 22.

The managers of Pythian castle were very kind to the ladies, and will do their best toward making the ball a success.

Mrs. Hubbell will be at the Nursery rooms Saturday afternoon for the purpose of giving out tickets to the ladies.

The tickets are $3, and it is expected the reasonable price and good cause will attract a large crowd.

The ladies will donate the supper and it will be an elegant one.

The Primary Teachers' Association.

The annual meeting of the Sunday School Primary Teachers' association was held at the First Presbyterian church on Saturday afternoon. An interesting program was observed, including music conducted by Murray and Ruth McGregor, a song by Master Frankie Barron, a recitation by Jessie Zeigler and a paper by Miss Brown on "Why I am a Primary Teacher." The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following: President, Miss Emma Schurtz; vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Skeldon; secretary, Miss Belle Barlow; treasurer, Mrs. L. B. Lake. Meetings are held weekly at the First Presbyterian church, and much valuable information is gained by the consultations.

The Gospel Service.

Miss Alberta Smith, general secretary of the Binghampton, N. Y., Young Woman's Christian association, led the gospel service at the association building yesterday, about 50 of the members being present.

The subject was "Stephen, a Character Study," and was very interesting.

Miss Agnes Hill leaves on Friday to attend the Michigan state convention of the Y. W. C. A. She has been invited to lead the gospel meeting, and conduct the college conference.

Thursday next is the day of special prayer for young women. Prayer meetings will be held in the association parlors at 7 and 12 o'clock.

Bartlett St. Church Revival.

Rev. Black preached two great sermons at the Bartlett street church yesterday. In the evening every nook and corner in the church, including the parlors, which are shut out from view of the pulpit, were filled to overflowing, and a great number of persons were unable to gain admission. A large number of persons took membership with the church, and many more were demonstrative in their interest.

Miss Harris sang four of her soul-searching and impressive songs in her inimitable style.

To-night Rev. Black will preach on "The Coming of Christ, and Burning of the World, Considered in the Lime Light of Critical Thought." Miss Harris will sing two solos. Baptismal services at close of services. Meetings at 7:30 each evening this week.

Miss Bacon's Entertainment.

A musical entertainment to be given at the Central Congregational church Wednesday evening, under the auspices of Miss Frances Bacon, numbers on the program some of the finest musical talent in the city.

The musicale is called Poses Plastiques, and the parts will be taken as follows:

Part I.

Organ—Offertory in F—Batiste—Miss Rose Clouse.
Song—Air and Variations—Rhode—Miss Eugenia M. Baldwin.
Studies in Expression—Miss Frances Ida Bacon.
Duet—O That We Two Were Maying—Mrs. Miller and Miss Baldwin.

Part II.

Song—Bedouin Love Song—Pinsuti—Mr. Lewis.
Recitation—Country Sleighing—Stedman—Miss Bacon.

THE STREET COMMITTEE

Will Recommend Lake Asphalt for Toledo.

On the trip home from New York the street committee held a meeting at which it was unanimously decided to recommend the use of Trinidad lake asphalt in paving the streets of Toledo.

Mr. Osborne was appointed to draw up a recommendation to this effect, and he will so report at the council meeting to-night.

MRS. IRA WALDRON

Appointed State Secretary of the Order of King's Daughters.

This morning Mrs. Ira Waldron received from Mrs. M. L. Dickinson, general secretary, official notice of her appointment as state secretary of the order of King's Daughters of Ohio.

This appointment gives great satisfaction to the members of the order, as the lady's executive ability and thoroughness in performing the duties of any office she may fill are well known.

Mrs. Waldron will begin next month to do very thorough work in the circles throughout the state.

THE FIRE OFFICIALS

Are Home, Pleased With the Toledo Department Yet.

Chief Wall and Fire Commissioner Hanner returned this morning from Louisville, Ky., where they were in attendance last week at the annual national convention of the chiefs of fire departments.

They had a pleasant time, were royally entertained by the Kentuckians, and by observation imbued a good many ideas that will eventually enure to the benefit of the Toledo department.

"I don't like to boast," said Commissioner Hanner," to a Bee, this this morning, "but judging from the reports read at the convention and the statistics given by the chiefs of departments in other cities, Toledo made a better showing than any city of its size in the country. Furthermore, when the large territory that the Toledo department covers is taken into consideration, the record of our department is made phenomenal by a comparison of the fire loss with that of other cities.

"All the latest devices and improvements in fire apparatus were on exhibit. We saw several new things which we think would add materially to the efficiency of the new fire houses that are going up here, but for obvious reasons we cannot state now the nature of the new apparatus."

When catarrh attacks a person of scrofulous diathesis, the disease is almost sure to become chronic. The only efficacious cure, therefore, is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which expels scrofula from the system, and the catarrh soon follows suit. Local treatment is only a waste of time.

LATE MARKETS.

The receipts of wheat at Toledo to-day are 53,792 bushels in excess of the corresponding Monday in 1891.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are simply astonishing for the time of year, or any time of year, and exceed Monday in 1891 547,409 bushels. To us, it is a daily surprise.

The Market Record of Saturday says that a good deal of wheat was hurt by the wet weather after the wheat was in shock.

The visible supply of wheat increased in the week 3,382,000 bus. Corn 371,000 bus. Oats 112,000 bus. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat increased 1,602,000 bus. Corn decreased 2,057,000 bus. Oats decreased 781,000 bus.

The New York Produce Exchange will adjourn from Tuesday to Thursday.

Under the conditions of the day the wheat market has stood up wonderfully well. The enormous recipts, and the large increase in the visible supply would ordinarily have broken the markets.

In New York October wheat closed at 80 1-4c, a gain of 1-4c; December at 82 1-2c, a loss of 1-8c; May at 88 7-8c, a loss of 1-8c. October corn at 50 7-8c, a loss of 3-4c; May at 54c, a loss of 1-4c. November oats at 37c, a loss of 3-8c.

In Chicago October wheat closed at 74 1-4c, December at 77 1-4c, May at 82 3-4c, a gain on each of 1-4c. October corn at 43 1-8c, a loss of 7-8c; May at 47 3-4c, a loss of 1-4c.

In Toledo business in wheat has been dull, and the trading very light. Wheat has been inactive and not very firm. The close shows a decline on December and May of 1-4c. On the call May sold at 83 3-4c. On the regular board October sold at 75 3-4c and closed at that; December at 77 3-4c to 77 1-2c and closed at 77 5-8c; May at 83 7-8c to 83 1-2c and closed at 83 1-2c.

Cash wheat was in fair request and a moderate business was reported. No 2 soft sold at 75 1-2c, a decline of 1-4c, but at close 75 3-4c was the market; No. 3 soft, 69c and at 70c to 70 1-2 L. S.; at close 69c was the market for regular; No. 4 soft at 62c; No. 2 hard at 71c; No. 2 at 67c; mixed wheat—No. 2 at 72c, No. 3 at 65 1-2c.

Corn—No. 2 at 44 1-2c, No. 3 at 44c, No. 4 at 41 1-2c, No. 3 yellow at 44 1-2c.

Oats—No. 3 at 30c; No. 3 white at 33c.

Rye—No. 2 at 58 1-2c asked.

Clover seed opened firm, but closed weaker, and at a decline. On the call October sold at $6.67 1-2; November at $6.70; December at $6.75. On the regular board prime for cash at $6.65; October at $6.67 1-2 to $6.65; November at $6.67 1-2; December at $6.75 to $6.65; January at $6.80 to $6.67 1-2. After 'change November sold at $6.60 to $6.55; No. 2 at $6.60 to $6.45.

Close in New York.

New York, Oct. 10.—Money loaned this morning at 4@5 per cent. Exchange steady; posted rates $4.86@4.87 1-2; actual rates $4.85@4.85 1-2 for 60 days and $4.86@4.86 1-4 for demand.

Governments quiet; currency, 6s, 107 bid; extended 2s, registered, 100 1-4 bid; 4s coupon, 114 5-8 bid.

Stocks were extremely dull this morning and prices fluctuated within a very narrow range and at noon the general railroad list was not materially changed from the closing figures of Saturday.

The only advance of importance was a rise of 5-8 in New England. In the trusts, however, there was considerable activity, while their prices were strong, and at noon under the lead of American Tobacco they were up to 1 and 2 per cent. At this writing the market is dull. The sales amounted to 87,850 shares.

Flour quiet with prices nominal; city mill extra 4.25@4.35 for West Indies; fine, 1.65@2.10; superfine, 1.70@2.20.

Wheat opened weak and 3-8 lower and at noon was steady; No. 2 red winter, 80 1-8@80 5-8 cash; 79 5-8 October; 80 3-4 November; 82 3-8 December; 88 1-2 May.

Corn opened weak and declined 3-4 by noon; No. 2 mixed 51 1-2 cash; 51 October; 52 5-8 December.

Oats opened steady at 3-8 decline and at noon were dull; No. 2 mixed, 36 cash; 37 bid November.

Rye and barley nominal.

Molasses dull and unchanged. Sugar refined steady; cutloaf and crushed, 5 5-16 @5 1-2; granulated, 4 15-16@5; cubes 4 15-16@5 1-2; mold A, 5@5 3-16. Coffee dull; No. 7 rio, 15 3-4@15 7-8. Rice nominal. Pork dull; mess, 11 75@12 00 for old. Lard steady; 8:50 October; 7 82 November. Butter dull but steady; creamery state extra, 24@24 1-2; western extra, 24 1-2; creamery western extra, 24 1-2. Cheese steady; state factory full cream fancy white, 10 1-4. Eggs dull; state choice, 23@24; western, 21 1-4@24. Turpentine fairly active at 29 1-2@30. Rosin dull; strained to good, 1.20@1.27 1-2. Tallow slow; prime city, 4 1-2. Petroleum nominal. Freights dull.

THE NASHUA!

The Steambarge Nashua in Very Bad Shape.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 10.—The wreck of the steambarge Nashua lies three miles below Bayfield. The starboard side from 50 feet aft of amidships to the stern, is completely carried away. It is supposed the boiler broke from its fastenings and went through the side of the steamer. Saturday a large quantity of wreckage and four life jackets came ashore. It is believed the jackets had been strapped on by the imperiled crew and after death came from exposure the bodies worked out. The bodies of none of the 15 victims on the steamer, when she encountered the gale on Lake Huron last Tuesday, have been found, although a close watch is being kept along the shore.

Examine the quality and prices on our Ribbons, and you will be pleased with both.

A novelty in sewing machines has been introduced by an English inventor. The device, which can be adapted to almost any sewing machine at a small expense, enables the production of not only the ordinary "lock" and "chain" stitch, but in addition a third, called the "embroidery" stitch. The last named is both useful and ornamental, possessing the strength and reliability of the "lock" stitch, combined with the elasticity of the "chain" stitch. Work done by the aid of this mechanism, fitted to various types of machines, was shown at a recent exhibition in the Gallery of the Society of Lady Artists, London, and attracted considerable attention.

Among famous women who were mothers of small families comes Elizabeth Barrett Browning, who had only one son. Mrs. Somerville, the mathematician, had two daughters and one son only, though she was twice married. Mme. George Sands had two children, a son and a daughter; so had Lady Mary Montagu, whose "letters" are so admired in literature, and Mme. de Sevigne, writer of equally famous "letters" in French. Mme. de Stael had three children in her early married life; when 48 years old she married a second time and then had another son. George Eliot (Mrs. Cross) was childless, and so was Mrs. Craik, the author of "John Halifax." Mrs. Barbauld, whose prose and poetry were both much admired in the last century, had no children, and the same was the case with her equally praised contemporary, Mrs. Opie.

Senator Frank Hiscock's plea for Harrison's re-election because a change would disturb and unsettle business is a good plea for the abandonment of representative government and in favor of monarchial rule. It is the argument imperialists use in their advocacy of "a strong government." If the administration of President Harrison doesn't represent the sentiment of the majority of the people of the United States (and it doesn't), it cannot be reversed too soon. That is the issue for November.

THE FARMER'S CAMPAIGN DOCUMENT.

Twenty items of farm products are taxed by the McKinley law, a half of which, at the least, are not affected by foreign production and could not be, except in the event of a time of drouth, blight and famine over the whole country. And the farmer is asked to believe that a tax of $8 a ton on broom corn, 3 cents a head on cabbage and 40 cents a bushel on onions will compensate for tax on 160 items of iron production that enter into daily necessities, and duty on wool in all forms, clothing, carpets, bedding, and hundreds of articles in constant use in the home and the workshops and on the farm. The Canadian farmer can buy an American-made plow cheaper than the American farmer can, or a sewing machine, or a reaper and mower. And in return for this far-reaching robbery, a tax of 3 cents on cabbages, 5 cents on eggs and 5 cents on dressed poultry is levied, and a great hurrah made about it. The best campaign document for the farmer is the McKinley tariff law. Let him make a study of its items, and draw his own conclusions.

DEMOCRACY.

A rock of eternal strength, a rock of granite firmness and integrity. A principle of human existence, a quality of human purpose. At the base of this rock liberty has often taken refuge and here human rights have been defended. Behind this fortress, Divinely ordained and fashioned, the forces of progress have rallied and broad-minded and broad-purposed civilization has advanced. Whenever a stand for liberty has been taken, by whatever people and in whatever clime, the sun of democracy has brightly shone upon patriots whose example has cheered other hosts, in other lands.

Democracy resisted kingly oppression and made the American colonies a republic. The spirit of democracy of the Eighteenth century made the Nineteenth a century of democratic independence, of individual thought, and engrafted individual rights upon the written and unwritten constitutions of the nations of former autocracy. Not an empire, kingdom or principality that has not modified its authority over subjects the past fifty years. It is democracy working steadily upon mind and matter. The spirit of the American forefathers is upon this country and is impressed with influence and power upon that political party called Democrat. The patriotism of Jefferson is profoundly impressed upon the party he founded, and the unwavering belief in the people which was characteristic of Jackson is a cardinal virtue of the party of Jefferson and Jackson. He who has his political faith pinned to the principles of democracy is strong in self, and is a living link in the chain of liberty which binds the past with the present and which makes the future of the country hopeful and promising.

The landmarks of this party are an heirloom to pass from generation to generation in perpetuity. The fundamental principle is the absolute belief in self government. One man, if he be morally worthy, is as good as another in the political home where democracy has being—in the party where democracy is perennial. The right of individual sovereignty is a gift from Divinity to man, and in a republic of integrity can never be delegated to a centralized power. The command to earn bread by the sweat of the brow involves the ownership of that substance which work supplies. The government of individuals may tax the individual for collective support, but not for the bestowal of discriminating favor. The right of self government, and the possession of individual property honestly earned are the plains of Democracy upon which the American democratic party has erected its tabernacle of hope. The principles of liberty and progress have refuge here, and to all the world the promise of individual sovereignty is like a benediction of peace and grace in the race of human individuality.

A party thus intrenched can never be dislodged, can never be destroyed. This is why the democratic party has survived all antagonisms, and has preserved its entity while opposition has waged and warred, waxed and waned and passed into history. For this old party of ours the saints of democracy grew gray in earthly service and have their reward. To this old party the fathers who link the present active generation with past vigor and glory are faithful soldiers yet. To this old party belongs the manly strength of this active, inventive, progressive, business generation. To this old-new, this everlasting party, young men are swearing allegiance to-day. It reveres its past, it is proud of its present, it is hopeful and certain of its future. It is the party of the people, the home of patriots, the refuge of the oppressed. This is the party of Jefferson, this is the party of Jackson, this is the party of Cleveland. This is the party which invites your support this year, the party which urges you to fall in for active service, for alignment upon the file leader of democracy, of liberty, of freedom, of individual sovereignty, of individual rights.

This is democracy.

THE POLITICAL EQUALITY CLUB

Planned for Their Lecture Course and the Annual Meeting.

A pleasant meeting of the members of the Political Equality club was held at the residence of Mrs. Judge Bentley, 435 Superior street, Saturday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Claud Q. Murphy, in the chair, Miss Fannie Beally secretary.

The chapter from Civil Governmet was read on municipal officers.

There being considerable business before the club, no parliamentary drill was held.

The principal business was the consideration of the course of lectures to be given under the auspices of the club. To make these lectures successful it is necessary that each member shall work. Those who have no tickets can procure them at the office of the Woman's Recorder, in the Worthington block.

The first lecture will occur on the evening of October 19, in Memorial hall annex, the lecture to be given by Miss Lide Meriwether, of Tennessee.

The club has obtained for the course the best talent in the country, and it is expected that Toledo people will appreciate and improve the opportunity to listen to these distinguished women.

Mrs. Bentley, Mrs. Beally and Miss Calkins were appointed a committee to prepare decorations for the hall, and there will also be music and an introductory address by the president.

In order to put matters in shape, and that the committees may have an opportunity to report, there will be a business meeting held next Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bentley, 435 Superior, street, at which every member is requested to be present.

On Saturday afternoon, October 22, the annual meeting and election of officers will be held with Mrs. Frank, 324 Batavia street, between Ashland avenue and Fulton street.

The Political Equality club was organized October 16, 1891. Its growth has been rapid both in numbers and influence, and the annual meeting will probably take on the form of a jollification.

After an impressive talk by the president, on the purpose and aim of suffrage, the meeting adjourned, to meet at the same place in one week.

The trial of Councilman Daly was taken up in common pleas court this morning at 10 o'clock.

Clerk Wade called the roll of the jurors and reported all present.

Prosecutor Barber introduced proceedings by formally reading the indictment against Mr. Daly and other councilmen.

Before he had concluded the court room was crowded with spectators.

Mr. Barber, in stating the case, said that the state expected to prove a conspiracy and combination between 10 of the Toledo council; that the evidence would show that shortly after the spring election, about the middle of May last, the defendant and co-defendants entered into a combination for the purpose of using their influence in the council for a consideration. He then described the Pluto Oil company and the desire of this company to obtain a franchise for the construction of a pipe line through the city.

Mr. Barber went on to state that the state would show that ten persons, after the first meeting of the city council after the spring election, met at the store of Charles Nuendorf; that the names of the ten persons were Charles Schmul, W. H. Taylor, J. A. Rutherford, James Faskins, W. J. Gill, Chas. Nuendorf, John Daly, F. C. Tanner, R. P. Swain, and George M. Doner. When these ten persons had congregated, he said they began to discuss the project of forming a combination; that one said there was a splendid chance for them to form a combine to vote for or against any measure they might see fit; and that it was further discussed that they might as well get some pay for their influence; that this had been accomplished before; that certain corporations were willing to pay for certain legislation, among which were the Pluto Oil company, Northwestern Natural Gas company, and the Warren-Scharf Paving company; that one or two of the members present at this meeting objected to the formation of a combination, arguing that it was dangerous and not right; that the state would prove that this meeting was held in the dark, and lasted until the combination was perfected; that the evidence would show that when the organization was completed the members all arose in a circle, and, clasping each other's hands, repeated these words: "We do solemnly pledge and bind ourselves not to divulge what has transpired at this meeting."

The state would show that the next meeting was held at Tanner's office; that at this meeting the advisability of taking in another member to make ten councilmen was discussed, and that it was concluded to invite Mr. Felker to join the combine; that the object of the organization was discussed as before; that Tanner said that the Northwestern Gas company was willing to pay; that he had seen Rogers about the matter.

That the state would show that a third meeting was held, and that Felker was not present until another meeting, held later on at Fisher's club house, when he pulled out altogether.

The third meeting was held at Neuendorf's store, and that at this meeting James Faskins was dismissed because he was not acting as the agent of the combine, in a satisfactory manner; that at this meeting Daly was elected agent and treasurer, and was dubbed the "Grand Mogul;" that at this meeting it was decided to take Manchester into the ring, and Rutherford volunteered to wait upon the gentleman.

At the next meeting Manchester put in an appearance to take Felker's place. During this meeting the various ordinances in the interest of the corporation mentioned were discussed. Mr. Swain was requested to see Mr. Hoag, of the Warren-Scharf company, but refused. Daly was delegated to call on Lorenz. The price for the passage of the legislation, Mr. Barber said, the state expected to show, was as follows: Pluto Oil company, $5,500; Paragon Oil company, $11,000; Northwestern Natural Gas company, $822,000; Warren-Scharf company, 10 per cent. on all contracts.

Mr. Barber then referred to the legislation on the Pluto ordinance as well as the Paragon, and stated that the combination kept the ordinance down until the indictment was filed against the members.

He continued that the state was prepared to prove that August Machen, of the Pluto Oil company, had been approached by one of the combination and informed that a combination had been formed and that he would have to "whack up" to get his ordinance through; that he wrote on a piece of paper $500 in figures and then said, "How will that strike you?"

"What do you mean, $500 for the votes?"

"No, $500 apiece."

Mr. Barber stated that as soon as the members of the Pluto Oil company heard of the combination they concluded to break it. The meeting at the Pluto oil office and what transpired was related by Mr. Barber. He had a stenographic transcript of what had been said during the meeting as taken by the stenographer under the floor, and was about to read it when Judge Ritchie objected, stating that he did not believe it was the proper time to introduce testimony; that the code provided for a statement of facts.

The court sustained the objection, and instructed Mr. Barber to state facts briefly.

Mr. Barber continued that this meeting was held June 21, at 2 p. m.; that Frank Tanner was the first to appear, and Geo. Lorenz asked him why their ordinance had not been passed, and that Tanner replied that the ordinance would be put through that night if they would whack up; that not a cent less than $5,500 would do, and it would have to be the "long gem," as "checks don't go."

Mr. Barber continued that Lorenz wanted to know what assurance he would have that the ordinance would be passed after they had paid the money, to which Tanner replied that he knew a combine had been effected, he was not in it; that by paying the price to Daly the ordinance would go through all right. Lorenz wanted to see Daly and he was brought in, as was Gill. However, this matter was dropped as Mr. Lorenz said he was afraid they could not deliver the vote. The next meeting of the combine, Mr. Barber continued, was at Fisher's club house. One or two members urged that the Pluto oil matter be dropped, and that the ordinance be passed; that he had been importuned several times to aid in the passage of the ordinance, by personal friends. Another replied that personal friendship cut no figure; they would have to put up.

Next Swain appeared and in an interview with Mr. Lorenz stated that Daly could deliver the goods, and the money could be paid to him or Daly.

Mr. Barber concluded that the state would show that other corporations had been solicited by the combine.

Mr. Brophy, for the defense, stated that they were prepared to prove that no combination had ever been formed; that the meeting referred to was only the friendly intercourse of councilmen for the purpose of promoting public interest; that they did not go voluntarily to the Lorenz office, but were sent for; that August Machen and George Lorenz first persuaded and then offered money; that failing in this course they resorted to blackmail; that they had a copy of a so-called stenographer's report of what was alleged to have transpired, made and left with Judge MacGahan, in order that Mr. Gill might become aware of its existence, being in the same office. It was then that Gill threatened to go before the grand jury, that the Pluto people became frightened, and made haste to have the councilmen indicted.

The following witnesses were then sworn: State—R. B. Swain, A. W. Machen, John A. Felker, George Lorenz, Henry E. Lorenz, Frank Smith, David Robison, Geo. A. Bassett, Frank Coleman.

Defense—W. H. Taylor, J. A. Rutherford, F. C. Tanner, W. J. Gill.

Mr. Swain was the first witness called to the stand. Judge Ritchie objected to a co-defendant testifying in a case, the evidence of which would bear directly upon himself as well as others.

The court ruled that a witness need not answer a question that would criminate himself.

Mr. Barber asked the question whether he knew of any combination of councilmen formed after the spring election.

Mr. Ritchie objected and Judge Harmon promptly overruled.

Mr. Ritchie said he hoped the court would take time to consider his decision, as the point was a very important one.

Judge Harmon said he would listen to anything counsel had to say.

Judge Ritchie stated that the indictment contained no charge of conspiracy, and that if an individual received pay for his vote it was not a part of a conspiracy or combination. He quoted a number of authentics in the point, after which the court adjourned for dinner.

The afternoon session was resumed with an argument by Prosecutor Barber in defense of the exception taken to the question propounded Mr. Swain before the morning session closed. He stated that there was no direct statute regulating or making a conspiracy a crime. The object for which the defendant on trial strove to gain could not be accomplished alone, that to effect the purpose of soliciting the brige require combine action. The indictment did not charge any one of the defendants with soliciting $500 for his vote, but they were jointly interested in the $5500.

The court overruled the objection.

TWENTY-FIVE NEBRASKIANS

Swooped Down on Toledo This Morning,

And Are Endeavoring to Show That Their State Is Way On Top—Something About the Enterprise.

"Sugar from beets? Well, I should say so," remarked Isaac LeDioyt to a Bee this morning. "Let me tell you something about it."

Mr. LeDioyt is the city editor of the Adams County Democrat at Hastings, Nebraska, and he is here in Toledo on board of a train load of Nebraska exhibits along with some 25 other prominent citizens of the state.

"This is the beet," he said, producing a gigantic specimen of the tribe. "It's about 15 per cent sugar. The Nebraska farmer can grow from 10 to 30 tons of these beets to the acre, and he realizes $3.75 per ton on what is called a 12 per cent. beet—that is a beet that will yield 12 per cent of its weight in sugar. The price increases with the richness of the product. The rich juices are extracted by cooking under heavy steam pressure. From this juice the sugar crystals are extracted. The water in due time makes excellent vinegar, and the pulp is fed to stock so nothing is lost. Yes, sir, beet sugar has come to stay and Nebraska is the place to grow it."

The exhibit train consists of four cars, two for the exhibits, a baggage car and a sleeper. The train is gaily decorated inside and out with corn, grasses, etc., in artistic combinations. The interior decorations will form a part of the Nebraska exhibit in the state building at the world's fair.

The train was sent out for a 30 days' trip under the authority of the advisory board of the Nebraska State Business Men's association, and Toledo is as far east as it will go. To-morrow Napoleon and Defiance will be visited. A longer stay would have been made in Toledo if a more favorable location had been secured. The train stands back of the old Island House.

Following is the personnel of the party: R. F. Hodgin, general secretary and manager, Omaha; F. H. Moore, assistant secretary and treasurer, Kearney; S. S. English, third vice president and press representative, Eagle; J. C. Dort, chairman state trade committee, Burchard; I. L. Fisk, chairman state legislative committee, Beatrice. Together with the following representatives of the different counties in charge of exhibits: Isaac LeDioyt, Hastings, Adams county; E. W. Wright, David City, Butler county; W. A. Downing, Kearney, Buffalo county; J. C. Cleland, Fremont, Dodge county; M. E. Scott, Cozad, Dawson county; E. T. Duke, Omaha, Douglas county; A. J. McPeak, Arapahoe, Furnas county; Geo. H. Hill, Beatrice, Gage county; H. B. Huffman, Lincoln, Lancaster county; C. L. Williams, North Platte, Lincoln county; C. Boulware and George Gird, Sheridan, Sheridan county, Wyoming. Allison Knee of Plattsmouth and W. F. Coole of Lincoln, car decorators; H. Lewis, baggageman; W. B. Jameson, private secretary to the board of directors; S. M. Knox, passenger agent of the Union Pacific; J. H. Gabel of the F. B. & M. V. railroad; W. M. Shaw, traveling passenger agent of the C., B. & Q., and Charles L. Fox of Douglass, Converse county, Wyoming.

The exhibit is excellent and while a description would prove interesting space can not be devoted here. Suffice to say it contains everything that grows in the state and much that is manufactured or belongs to the mineral world. There were quite a number of visitors this morning. The train will be here until evening.

TOLEDO POLITICIANS AT PITTSBURG,

Bishop Campbell and Brother Jenkins on a Fat Frying Expedition.

P. A. Allen, formerly of this city and now of Pittsburg, writing to a friend here, says his duties call him daily to the large factories. Anent this he recites an interesting incident:

"It is my custom," he writes, "to visit large shops and factories during the noon hour and canvass the men. Well, last Friday I was at one of the largest iron shops here in Pittsburg and who do you suppose I ran in to? A couple of our colored politicians from Toledo, namely, Bishop Campbell, of the Tin church, and his side partner, Mr. Jenkins. They are out on a fat-frying expedition, and were calling on all the protected barons in the interest of the colored body politic, as the bishop put it. They deliberately went into the offices of the big concerns and told the proprietors if they were not "fixed" that all the colored men were going to vote for Cleveland.

"The bishop showed me letters from the democratic and republican committees in Detroit, Cleveland and other cities, and Jenkins said there were heaps of money in the chase this time. They are on their way to New York to make big demands from the national committee, and Jenkins says they are coming back in a sleeping car.

"I am doing considerable missionary work myself, and while in Buffalo organized a democratic club among the canvassers there. I will go back to Toledo to vote in November and hope to find you and all the boys in good health. The democrats have a fine chance this time and Grover will be a sure winner. My business calls me among the iron workers here a good bit, and from conversations I have had with them I can confidentially tell you we are going to make awful big gains all through the iron district, and if the democrats do good work in Ohio it will surely go our way. You mark my word and watch the gains all through the western reserve and especially the Mahoning Valley in Ohio."

Machinists' Grand Rally.

To-morrow (Tuesday) evening, in Carpenters' hall, the International Association of Machinists will have an open meeting and grand rally, assisted by the other labor organizations of Toledo.

The event is a reception to the organizer of the association, Mr. Herry Easton, of Omaha, who has all his life been engaged in trying to solve the labor problem, and has done much for the alleviation of the sufferings and privations of his fellow men. He will deliver an address, and local labor leaders will be present and speak.

A cordial invitation is extended to all workingmen, whether union men or not, and every one interested in the cause of labor.

Ladies are especially invited, and it is hoped that every labor sympathizer in Toledo will be present.

LOCAL POLITICS.

Byron Ritchie Will Make an Earnest Canvass.

What Kind of a Man Mr. P. C. Hudson Is—Ashley and the Parks—Notes.

Byron F. Ritchie, the democratic nominee for congress, is making a red-hot canvass, and proposes making it warm for Mr. Ashley. He will canvass the district, and it will not be his fault if victory is not secured.

Judge Hudson.

On page 637 of the well-known work entitled "Presidents, Soldiers and Statesmen" is the following flattering notice of P. C. Hudson, the democratic nominee for common pleas judge: Entered the army at Havana, Ill., July 12, 1862, at the age of 17 years, enlisting as private in Company K, Eighty-fifth Ill. V. I. His regiment was assigned to the Third brigade, Second division, Fourteenth army corps. He was promoted to corporal, then to first sergeant, then to first lieutenant and then to adjutant of the regiment. He was in a great many battles and skirmishes, and several times his clothing was pierced with bullets, escaping otherwise uninjured; never in hospital, and never absent from his command during his whole service. His record includes the battles of Stone River, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Buzzard Roost, Resaca, Peach Tree Creek, Kenesaw Mountain, Jonesboro, Atlanta, Savannah and Bentonville; discharged at Washington, D. C., at close of the war, June 5, 1865; member of Forsyth post, No. 15, G. A. R. Mr. Hudson was born at Milton, Pike county, Ill., August 20, 1844. He now resides in Toledo, Ohio, and is engaged in the practice of law.

Ashley Opposed to Parks.

The people of lower town are earnestly and honestly in favor of park extensions along the river bank. J. M. Ashley, the republican candidate for congress, is radically opposed to the park scheme. In a letter to the Commercial Mr. Ashley gives this thin excuse for his opposition to the wishes of the people of the First ward:

Permit me, through your columns, to answer some letters which I have received asking "why I oppose securing the property on the river bank, in front of the old Hough place, demanded by the park commissioners for a park in the First ward?"

* * * * * * * *

As the property in question is not mine, but belongs to the Ann Arbor Railroad company; was purchased for it, and bonded by it, I could not, if I would, use it without the consent of the company, nor could I sell it, or permit it to be taken by default for any purpose that would permanently deprive the railroad company of its use.

Notes.

Register on Thursday, democrats.

The committee smoked on Mr. Scribner to-day.

Carl Schurz is booked for a speech here next week.

The headquarters in Walbridge hall have been handsomely fitted up.

The Hudson drum corps is one of the best organizations of the kind in the city.

The First Ward Democratic club will meet this evening at their wigwam on lower Erie street.

An immense banner will be thrown across Summit street on which the pictures of Cleveland and Stevenson will be displayed.

The democrats of the Fourth ward will meet at the corner of Nebraska avenue and Division street to-morrow evening with a view of organizing a ward club. Ward Committeeman Steinman requests all democrats in the ward to attend.

Locke Curtis, who has been appointed Neg. Cochran's manager during this campaign, has refused Manager Jim Southard's offer of $25 for each speech delivered by Neg. Curtis thinks Neg's humorous addresses are worth at least $50 each. Locke Curtis is to take the stump himself, and will open the campaign this week at Kramer's corners.

LOCAL TELEPHONE SERVICE.

Superintendent Carney Speaks of Improvements Going On.

M. J. Carney, state superintendent of the Bell Telephone company, was in the city yesterday and this morning.

Referring to the service here, he said it was being improved as rapidly as possible, but that it would be some time before all the lines would be in as good condition as the company intended to put them eventually.

"We are trying to do away with the buzzing sound that is so noticeable now," said he. "A force of men has been at work here in Toledo all summer putting in heavier wires and replacing the poles with taller ones. The idea is to elevate the telephone wires as far above the trolley wires as possible. This will minimize the effect of the latter upon the former, and do away with the buzzing sound when a heavy wire is used. All this takes time, of course; but we expect that the improvement will be completed next year.

"The work is being pushed as rapidly as possible, but very little more can be accomplished before spring."

THE CATHOLIC CLUB

Will Have a Columbian Meeting on October 20th.

The last meeting of the Catholic club was postponed on account of the lockout at the hall, and consequently no preparation for the meeting on the 20th could be made at that time.

Yesterday the board of managers met at the home of Mrs. Sara J. Foley, and decided to have the meeting on October 20 a Columbian one, with patriotic speeches and songs.

Some well known gentlemen will deliver addresses, and Prof. Poulin's male quartet will furnish some good music.

The members are privileged to invite their friends and it is expected there will be a large attendance.

THIS WEEK'S RACES.

John Donaldson To Be Corbett's Sparring Partner.

Weather permitting, this week's races, beginning October 13, will be a howling success. The entries have gone beyond the expectations of the company, many excellent horses being on the list.

A temporary platform is being erected for Corbett's benefit. Mr. Crane received a telegram this morning stating that Prof. John Donaldson will be Corbett's sparring partner. Reserved seats are in demand and everything is in readiness for the event.

The Woman's Building.

Interest in the Woman's Club building project is revived and the first formal meeting of the association was held in the Bee editorial rooms Saturday afternoon last. In the absence of Miss Bouton, Mrs. Ridenour occupied the chair, and Miss Emma Law acted as secretary, Mrs. Wheeler being absent. A general discussion aroused a great deal of enthusiasm and gave voice to a great deal of encouragement. The chief trouble in the rapid advancement of the work seems to be that women with the ability and energy to push it have not the time. It was decided to ask representative members of the different clubs of the city to be present at the next meeting to give assurance of their support by use of rooms when the building is completed. Rental will be placed low. Mrs. Bissell, Mrs. Woodford, Mrs. Breckenridge, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Segur and Mrs. Watson discussed questions of ways and means. Additional share takers were reported. The next regular meeting occurs Saturday, October 29, at the Bee rooms, 3:30 p. m.

Columbus, O., Oct. 10.—The yard switchmen of all the railroads entering Columbus held a meeting and decided to make a formal demand on Tuesday for the same wages paid at Pittsburg and Cincinnati. The men expect the advance will be granted by the companies without any trouble.

LYNN RESIGNES

As Chief Grain Inspector of the Produce Exchange.

Geo. W. Lynn, chief grain inspector of the Produce exchange, has resigned, and the Produce exchange to be held this after- at a special meeting of the directors of noon his successor will be appointed.

OH, SHOUTIN'S MIGHTY SWEET.

Plantation Parting Hymn.

Oh, shoutin's mighty sweet
 When yer shout when yer meet,
An' shek han's roun', an' say:
 "Bless Gord fur de meetin'!
 Bless Gord fur de greetin'!"
Shoutin' comes mighty easy dat a-way.

But ter shout when yer part,
 An' ter shout f'om yo' heart,
When yer gwine far away, far away,
 Wid a lettin' go han's
 An' a-facin' strange lan's,
Shoutin' comes mighty hard sech a day.

"Glory" sticks in yo' th'aot
 At de whistle o' de boat,
Dat cuts like a knife thoo yo' heart;
 An' "Hallelujah" breaks
 At de raisin' o' de stakes
Dat loosens up de ropes ter let 'er start.

But ef yer fix yo' eye
 On de writin' in de sky,
Whar de "good-byes" is all stuncken out,
 An' read de promus clair
 Of another geth'rin there,
You kin say far'well, my brothers, with a shout.

Den shout, brothers, shout!
 Oh, tell yo' vict'ry out,
How neither death nur partin' kin undo yer.
 Look fust at yo' loss,
 But last at de cross,
Singin' glory, glory, glory hallelujah!
—Ruth McEnery Stuart, in Harper's Bazar.

THAT LOCK OF HAIR.

I.

The report of a pistol rang out through the still night.

"Something wrong," said Policeman 145, as he paused for a moment on his beat. He listened intently, but there was no further sound; he then walked quickly towards the place where the report had seemed to come.

It was a blind alley, formed by the backs of large ware houses, with a solitary lamp at its entrance. By the aid of the lantern the policeman groped his way down.

He had very nearly come to the end of it, when he saw a dark object lying before him. He turned his "bullseye" full on it.

It was the body of a young man of about 25, well dressed; the clothes were disarranged, evidently in a terrible struggle; the hands were tightly clenched together. The waistcoat was torn open, and a dark stain of blood, oozing through the white shirt, showed the bullet's course.

Policeman 145 blew his whistle, which brought to the spot a sergeant and two other policemen.

"A case of murder," he said to them. "We must take the body to the nearest mortuary. Mark the spot carefully, and send off a report at once to headquarters."

"Jim," said the sergeant, "you stay here and keep watch at the entrance; it won't do to neglect any precaution."

The policeman left behind paced up and down.

"Click." The noise of a key being turned in a lock. The policeman drew up under the shadow of the wall.

A man in a large cloak with a felt hat pulled well over the eyes advanced cautiously up the alley.

"Stop!" said the policeman, turning his lantern full on his face. The slouched hat and turned-up collar entirely concealed his features.

The policeman had just time to distinguish a pair of dark eyes and an aquiline nose, and then the man was on him, and with one quick movement had thrown him, stunned, to the ground.

II.

Detective Keen of the criminal investigation department was examining the body in the mortuary.

He was an ordinary-looking man; to all outward appearances there was nothing of the detective about him.

"Name, Henry Haworth," he jotted down in his note book after examining the linen. Then he looked at the clenched hands. He took the right hand in his and forced it open.

There, held in the grip of death, was a lock of hair. It was a jet black curl, and must have been torn from the murderer's head by the roots.

"Simple enough, so far," he said to himself, as he placed the lock of hair in his notebook. "The murderer made an appointment with his man in the alley, shot him, and then let himself into one of the warehouses. He must have something to do with the warehouses. He is a tall man, acquiline nose, curley hair; for some time to come he will have a bare patch on his forehead. I only wish I could find out something about Henry Haworth."

Detective Keen left the mortuary and made his way to the scene of the murder.

"To whom do these warehouses belong?" he asked of the watchman.

"That's Mr. Ingram's opposite, and the other two belong to Walters & Co.," said the night watchman.

"I'll begin by calling on Mr. Ingram," thought Detective Keen as he left, after a courteous "Good morning," to the night watchman.

"Can I speak to Mr. Ingram?" he asked when he reached the office in the city.

"I am afraid not, sir," was the answer. "Mr. Ingram has not been to the office for the last two days; he has been laid up with a severe chill."

"It may only be a coincidence, but it looks suspicious," thought the detective as he walked away with the address in his pocket.

III.

Mr. James Ingram lived in bachelor apartments. He was a wealthy man, but he preferred to have simple lodgings, and spent his leisure hours at his club.

"Can I speak to Mr. Ingram on business?" asked an uninteresting looking gentleman of the portly landlady who opened the door.

"No, sir; he is very poorly to-day, and told me he could see no one."

"I am sorry to hear that," said the visitor, adding, in tones of sympathy; "What is he suffering from?"

"It's a terrible headache, sir. Why, sir, when I took him up his breakfast this morning he kept his hand on his head the whole time that I was in the room."

"I am on the right track," said the detective as he made his way to Scotland Yard. "Kept his hand on his head, did he? I only wish I had a clue as to the motive."

His wish was to be fulfilled. On reaching "the Yard" he was sent for by the chief.

"We have just got a telegram from Australia, which gives us the information we want about Henry Haworth," said the great man, handing him a telegram.

The contents of the telegram made the dull eyes brighten. It ran thus:

"Make every inquiry for a gentleman calling himself Henry Haworth, real name Henry Ingram, a report of whose death was falsely circulated five years ago. He left Melbourne eight months ago for London, and has not since been heard of. He went to claim money held in trust for him by his brother, James Ingram. Wire result of inquiry to Mary Haworth, Melbourne."

IV.

Five minutes after reading the telegram Detective Keen, with a warrant in his pocket, in company with two plainclothes officers, was driving in a four-wheeler to Mr. Ingram's lodgings.

"I want Mr. Ingram," he said to the portly landlady.

"I told him that you said you would call again, but he has had to leave London for Liverpool on business," was the answer.

"When did he leave?"

"Some 20 minutes ago."

"In a cab?" sharply asked the detective.

"Yes, took from off that stand."

It was a neck-and-neck chase.

"Has the Liverpool express gone?" he asked a porter as he leaped out of the hansom at Euston.

"Ten minutes ago."

He ran to the stationmaster's office.

"I must have a 'special' to Liverpool at once. The express must be stopped to allow me to pass. Here's my authority," he said, showing the official a paper.

V.

The Liverpool express was slowing down.

"What on earth are we stopping for?" said an irritable old gentleman in a first-class carriage to his solitary companion.

The speaker was a tall man, clean shaven, with almost white hair; he looked some 50 years of age. A pair of dark eyes glittering through his spectacles gave him a somewhat strange appearance.

* * * *

The steamship Brittanic was just about to start; the last batch of passengers were coming on board.

Standing watching them was an ordinary looking man with dull, uninteresting eyes. A tall gentleman with white hair and spectacles had just come on deck.

The ordinary looking man saunters toward him. He is evidently preoccupied. As he passes by he swings his stick; it knocks the tall gentleman's hat off.

Then a strange thing happened. As the gentleman stooped to pick his hat up, the man who had knocked it off seized him by the hair. The wig came off and showed beneath it a crisp black head of hair; on the forehead there was a bare patch where a lock of hair had been torn away.

"James Ingram, I arrest you in the Queen's name," said Detective Keen, as he clapped the handcuffs on his wrists.—Boston Herald.

Rags find their way to the house ragbag, and from time to time we give them away or sell them for a pittance. But rags plays a very important part just the same. Last year the United States imported nearly $5,000,000 worth, and now because of the cholera quarantine manufacturers of fine writing and book paper say they can't go ahead with a rag shortage and manufacture at present prices. It is a fact that the finest paper is made of foreign rags, and a further fact that the American ragman has put up his prices from 75 to 100 per cent.

Dvorak's father designed to have the budding musician become a sausage-maker like himself. The village schoolmaster had taught the boy to play the violin and sing, but even after he had surprised his father by composing the orchestral score for a polka, it was long before he could secure the paternal consent to go to Prague to prosecute his studies. Dvorak's change in financial condition is indicated by the fact that while thirty years ago he did not have in his pocket the four cents necessary to gain admission to a representation of "Der Freischutz," he now receives $15,000 a year as director of the National Conservatory of Music.

Heiskell's Ointment

Is a positive cure for all forms of SKIN DISEASE.

We base this assertion on our observation of over thirty years, in which time a very large number and variety of Skin Diseases have been reported to us as cured, by the simple use of Heiskell's Ointment without the aid of internal remedies. Many of these were cases of long duration, that had resisted the treatment of the most eminent medical talent in this and other countries. Heiskell's Ointment seems never to have failed in a single instance.

HALF A PLANET.

A Sermon Appropriate to the Columbian Observances.

"Lift Thine Eyes Westward" the Basis for An Admirable Sermon by An Eloquent Man.

Brooklyn, Oct. 10.—Rev. Dr. Talmage's discourse Sunday was occasioned by the Columbus observance now taking place. In the overflowing audience were many who had come to the city to participate in the patriotic ceremonies. The subject was: "Half a Planet," the text being Deuteronomy, iii. 27: "Lift up thine eyes westward."

So God said to Moses in Bible times, and so he said to Christoforo Columbus, the son of a wool-comber of Genoa, more than 400 years ago. The nations had been looking chiefly toward the east. But, while Columbus, as his name was called after it was Latinized, stood studying maps and examining globes, and reading cosmography, God said to him, "Lift up thine eyes toward the west." The fact was it must have seemed to Columbus a very lop-sided world. Like a cart with one wheel, like a scissors with one blade, like a sack on one side of a camel, needing a sack on the other side to balance it. Here was a bride of a world with no bridegroom. When God makes a half of anything, he does not stop there. He makes the other half. We are all obliged sometimes to leave things only half done. But God never stops half way, because he has the time and power to go all the way. I do not wonder that Columbus was not satisfied with half a world, and so went to work to find the other half. The pieces of carved wood that were floated to the shores of Europe by a westerly gale, and two dead human faces, unlike anything he had seen before, likewise floated from the west, were to him the voice of God, saying: "Lift up thine eyes toward the west." But the world then as now had plenty of can't-be-done's. That is what keeps individuals back and enterprises back and the church back, and nations back—ignominious and disgusting and disheartening can't-be-done's. Old navigators said to young Columbus, "It can't be done." The republic of Genoa said, "It can't be done." Alphonso V. said, "It can't be done." A committee on maritime affairs, to whom the subject was submitted declared, "It can't be done." Venetians said, "It can't be done." But the father of Columbus' wife died, leaving his widow a large number of sea charts and maps, and as if to condemn the slur that different ages put upon mothers-in-law, the mother-in-law of Columbus gave him the navigator's materials out of which he ciphered America.

After a while the story of this poor but ambitious Columbus reached the ear of Queen Isabella, and she pays $80 to buy him a decent suit of clothes, so that he may be fit to appear before royalty. The interview in the palace was successful. Money enough was borrowed to fit out the expedition. There they are, the three ships in the Gulf of Cadiz, Spain. If you ask me which have been the most famous boats of the world, I would say, first, Noah's ship, that wharfed on Mount Ararat; second, the boat of bulrushes in which Moses floated the Nile; third, the Mayflower that put out from Plymouth with the Pilgrim fathers; and now these three vessels that on this, the Friday morning, August 3, 1492, are rocking on the ripples.

I am so glad it is Friday, so that the prows of those three ships shall first of all run down the superstition that things begun or voyage started on Friday must necessarily prove disastrous.

Show me any Monday or Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday or Saturday that ever accomplished as much as this expedition that started on Friday. With the idea that there will be perils connected with the expedition, the sacrament of the Lord's supper is administered. Do not forget that this voyage was begun under religious auspices. There is the Santa Maria, only 90 feet long, with four masts and eight anchors. The captain walking the deck is 57 years old, his hair white, for at 35 he was gray, and his face is round, his nose aquiline, and his stature a little taller than the average. I know from his decided step and the set of his jaw that he is a determined man. That is Capt. Christopher Columbus. Near by, but far enough off not to run into each other, are the smaller ships, the Pinta and the Nina, about large enough and safe enough to cross the Hudson river or the Thames in good weather.

There are two doctors in this fleet of ships, and a few landsmen, adventurers who are ready to risk their necks in a wild expedition. There are enough provisions for a year. "Captain Columbus, where are you sailing for?" "I do not know." "How long before you will get there?" "I cannot say." "All ashore that are going," is heard, and those who wish to remain go to the land. Now the anchors of the three ships are being weighed and the ratlines begin to rattle and the sails to unfurl.

The wind is dead east and it does not take long to get out to sea. In a few hours the adventurers wish they had not started.

The ships begin to roll and pitch. Oh, it is such a delightful sensation for landsmen! They begin to bother Captain Columbus with questions. They want to know what he thinks of the weather They want to know when he thinks he will probably get there. Everey time when he stands taking observations of the sun with astrolable observations of the he sees and ask more questions. The crew are rather grouty.

Some of them came on under four months' advance pay and others were impressed into the service. For sixteen days the wind is dead east, and that pleases the captain, because it blows them further and further away from the European coast, and further on toward the shore of another country, if there is any.

After a while there comes a calm day, and the attempt is made to fathom the ocean, and they cannot touch bottom though the line and lead run down 200 fathoms. More delightful sensations for those who are not good sailors! A fathom is six feet, and two hundred fathoms, one thousand two hundred feet, and below that it may be many hundred feet deeper. To add interest to the voyage, on the twentieth day out, a violent storm sweeps the sea, and the Atlantic ocean tries what it can do with the Santa Maria, the Pinta, and the Nina. Some of you know something of what a sea can do with the Umbria, the Majestic, the Teutonic and the City of Paris, and you must imagine what the ocean could do with those three small ships of olden time. You may judge what the ocean was then what it is now; it has never changed its habits. It can smile like the morning, but often it is the archangel of wrath and its most rollicking fun is a shipwreck.

The mutinous crew would have killed Columbus had it not been for the general opinion on shipboard that he was the only one that could take them back home in safety.

The promise of a silk waistcoat and $40 in money to the man who should first discover land appeased them somewhat, but the indignation and blashpemy and threats of assassination must have been awful. Yet, God sustained the great sailor commanding the Santa Maria. Every evening on shipboard they had prayers and sung a vesper hymn. But, after all the patience of those on board the ships had been exhausted, and the great captain or admiral had been cursed by every anathema that human lips could frame, one night a sailor saw a light moving up and down, and then disappearing.

On Friday morning at 2 o'clock, just long enough after Thursday to make it sure that it was Friday and so give another blow at the world's idea of unlucky days—on Friday morning, October 12, 1492, a gun from the Pinta, signalled "land ahead."

Then the ships lay to, and the boats were lowered, and Captain Christopher Columbus first stepped upon the shore, amid the song of birds and the air a surge of redolence, and took possession in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost. So the voyage that began with the sacrament ended with Gloria in Excelsis Deo. From that day onward, you say there can be nothing for Columbus but honors, rewards, rhapsodies, palaces, and world-wide applause. No, no! On his way back to Spain, the ship was so wrenched by the tempest and so threatened with destruction that he wrote a brief account of his discovery and put it in a cask and threw it overboard, that the world might not lose the advantage of his adventures. Honors awaited him on the beach, but he undertook a second voyage and with it came all maligning and persecution and denunciation and poverty. He was called a land grabber, a liar, a cheat, a fraud, a deceiver of nations. Speculators robbed him of his good name, courtiers depreciated his discoveries, and there came to him ruined health and imprisonment and chains, of which he said while he rattled them on his wrists: "I will wear them as a memento of the gratitude of princes." Amid keen appreciation of the world's abuse and cruelty, and with body writhing in the tortures of gout, he groaned out his last words: "In manus tuas Domine commendo spiritum meum": "In thy hands, oh Lord, I commend my spirit."

Of course he had regal obsequies. That is the way the world tries to atone for its mean treatment of great benefactors. Many a man has had a fine ride to his grave who during his life had to walk all the way. A big funeral, and instead of bread they give him a bone, that is a curbstone. But death that brings quiet to the body of others did not bring quiet to his. First buried in the church of Santa Maria. Seven years afterward removed to Seville. Twenty-three years afterward removed to San Domingo. Finally removed to Cuba. Four post-mortem journeys from sepulcher to sepulcher. I wish his bones might be moved just once more, and now that they have come so near to America as Cuba, they might during the great Columbian year be transported to our own shores, where they belong, and that in the fifth century after his decease, the American continent might build a mausoleum worthy of him who picked this jewel of a hemisphere out of the sea, and set it in the crown of the world's geography.

But the bright noonday sun of that old sailor's prosperity went down in thickest night, and though here and there a monument has been lifted in his memory, and here and there a city called after him, the continent that he was the means of founding was named after another name, and no fitting commemoration of his work has been proposed until nearly four hundred years after his body turned to dust. May the imposing demonstration now being made in its honor on the Atlantic coast, and to be made next year in his honor mid-continent, be brilliant enough and far-resounding enough and magnificent enough to atone for the neglect of centuries. May the good Lord allow that most illustrious sailor of all time look over the amethystine battlement long enough to see some of the geriadds wreathed around his name and hear some of the hemispheric shout that shall greet its memory.

What most impresses me in all that wondrous life, which, for the next twelve months, we will be commemorating by sermon and song and military parade and world's fair and congress of nations, is something I have never heard tated, and that is, that the discovery of America was a religious discovery and in the name of God. Columbus, by the study of the prophecies and by what Zechariah and Micah and David and Isaiah had said about the "end of the earth," was persuaded to go out and find the "ends of the earth," and he felt himself called by God to carry Christianity to the "ends of the earth." Then, the administration of the last supper before they left the Gulf of Cadiz, and the evening prayers during the voyage and the devout ascription as soon as they saw the new world, and the doxologies with which they landed. America was a religious discovery. Atheism has no right here; infidelity has no right here; vagabondism has no right here. And as God is not apt to fail in any of his undertakings (at any rate, I have never heard of his having anything to do with a failure), America is going to be gospelized, and from the Golden Gate of California to the Narrows of New York Harbor, and from the top of North America to the foot of South America, from Bering Straits to Cape Horn, this is going to be Immanuel's land. All the forms of irreligion and abomination that have cursed other parts of the world will land here—yea, they have already landed—and they will wrangle for the possession of this hemisphere, and they will make great headway and feel themselves almost established. But God will not forget the prophecies which encouraged Columbus about the "ends of the earth seeing the salvation of God," nor the Christian anthem which Columbus led on the morning of the 12th of October, 1492, on the coast of San Salvador. Like that flock of land birds which met the Santa Maria and the Pinta and the Nina far out at sea, indicating to the commanders of that fleet that they were approaching some country, so a whole fleet of promises and hopes, golden-winged and songful, this morning light around us, assuring us that we are approaching the glorious period of American evangelization. A divine influence will yet sweep the continent that will make the most blatant infidelity declare it was only joking when it said the Bible was not true, and the worst atheism announce that it always did believe in the God of Nations. Let others call for Requiem and Dead March, I call for George Frederick Handel's hallelujah chorus. There has been much talk of late about communication with other worlds. Mars has come so near we can see its canals, and it has been hoped that by signals after a while we may communicate with other stars. Ah, that will not be possible until our world has been reformed and evangelized. It would not do for our world in its lost and ruined state to have communication with other worlds. It would spoil their morals. But wait until this world is fully redeemed, as it will be, and then perhaps interstellar correspondence may be opened. Till then, this smitten and sickened world of ours must be quarantined from coming too near the unfallen worlds. But, thank God, the phrophecies which cheered Columbus in his great undertaking cheer us. America for God! Yea, the round world for God! There can be no doubt about it!

That great Italian navigator also impresses me with the idea that when one does a good thing, he cannot appreciate its ramifications. To the moment of his death, Columbus never knew that he had discovered America, but thought that Cuba was a part of Asia. He thought the island Hispaniola was the Ophir of Solomon. He thought he had only opened a new way to old Asia. Had he known what North and South America were and are, and that he had found a country 3,000 miles wide, 10,000 miles long, of 17,000,000 square miles, and four times as large as Europe, the happiness would have been too much for mortal man to endure. He had no idea that the time would come when a nation of 60,000,000 people on this side of the sea would be joined by all the intelligent nations on the other side the sea, for the most part of a year reciting his wonderful deeds. It took centuries to reveal the result of that one trans-Atlantic voyage. So it has always been. Could Paul, on that June day, when he was decapitated, have had any idea of what effect his letters and the account of his life would have on Christendom? Could Martin Luther have had any idea of the echoes that would ring through the ages from the bank of his hammer nailing the Latin theses against a church door at Wittenberg? Could Eli Whitney have realized the continents of wealth that would be added to the south by the invention of his cotton gin? Could John Guttenberg, toiling year after year, making type, and laboriously setting them side by side, and with presses changed now this way and now that, and sued by John Faust for money loaned, and many of the people trying to cheat Guttenberg out of his invention, he toiling on until he produced what is known as the Mazarin Bible, have any idea that, as a result of his invention, there would be libraries that placed side by side would again and again engirdle the earth, or the showers of newspapers that snow the world under? When Manhattan Island was sold to the Dutch for $24, neither they who sold or bought could have foreseen New York, the commercial metropolis of America, that now stand on it. Can a man who preaches a sermon or a woman who distributes tracts, or a teacher who instructs a class, or a passer-by who utters encouraging words, realize the infinitudes of useful results? The teacher at Harrow school who toiled with William Jones, the most stupid boy in school, and at the foot of his class, did not know that he was fitting for his work the greatest oriental scholar of modern times, his statue now in St. Paul's cathedral, London. Every move you make for God, however insignificant in your eyes, or in the eyes of others, touches worlds larger than the one Columbus discovered. Why talk about unimportant things? There are no unimportant things. Infinity is made up of infinitesimals. On a clear night the smallest dewdrop holds a star. Each one of you is at the center of a universe, and all you say and do somehow vibrates to the extreme of that universe in all directions. I promise everlasting renown to those who will go forth with Christian and sympathetic words. After the battle of Copenhagen, Nelson, the admiral, went into a hospital and halted at the bed of a wounded soldier who had lost his arm, and said: "Well, Jack, what is the matter with you?" and the soldier replied, "Lost my right arm, your honor;" and Nelson looked down at his own empty sleeve and said, "Well, Jack, you and I are both spoiled for fishermen. Cheer up, my brave fellow!" and that sympathetic word cheered the entire hospital. Before you die, you can, out of your own misfortunes, cheer a hundred souls, and start unending echoes. You can no more appreciate the far-reaching results of your life than Columbus could see the continent from arctic to antarctic. I say this not to make you proud and arrogant, but to make you tremble with your responsibilities, and to put you on your guard as to what you do and what you say.

While studying the life of this Italian navigator, I am also reminded of the fact that while we are diligently looking for one thing, we find another. Columbus started to find India, but found America. Go on and do your duty diligently and prayerfully and if you do not find what you looked for, you will find something better. Saul was hunting for several animals of his father's barnyard, but met Samuel, the prophet, who gave him a crown of dominion. Nearly all the great inventions and discoveries were made by men who at the time were looking for something else. Professor Morse gone to Europe to perfect himself in chemistry, on returning happens to see the packet-ship Sully from Havre, and while in conversation with a passenger learns of some experiments in France, which suggest to him the magnetic telegraphy. He went to Europe to learn the wisdom of others and discovered the telegraph. Hargreaves, by the upsetting of a machine, and the motion of its wheels while upset, discovered the spinning-jenny. So, my friend, go on faithfully and promptly with your work, and if you do not get the success you seek, and your plans upset, you will get something just as good and perhaps better. Sail ahead on the voyage of life, keep a correct log-book, brave the tempest, make the best use of the east wind, keep a sharp lookout, and I warrant you in the name of the God of Columbus that if you do not find what you want of an earthly nature, you will find heaven, and that will be better. What was worn-out India, crouching under a tropical sun, compared with salubrious and radiant and almost illimitable America, and what is all that this little world in which we live can afford you compared with the supernal realm, whose foliage, and whose fruits, and whose riches, and whose population, and whose grandeurs, and whose worship, and whose Christ make up an affluence that the most rapturous vocabulary fails to utter?

Another look at the career of that Admiral of the Santa Maria persuades me that it is not to be expected that this world will do its hard workers full justice. If any man ought to have been treated well from first to last, it was Columbus. Let others depict them. But a greater soul the centuries have not produced. This continent ought to have been called Columbia after the hero who discovered it, or Isabella after the queen who furnished the means for the expedition. No. The world did not do him justice while he was alive, and why should it be expected to do him justice after he was dead? Columbus in a dungeon! What a thought. Columbus in irons! What a spectacle. The wife of Robert Murray, after whom Murray Hill, New York, was named, never has received proper credit for detaining at a very rich luncheon the officers of the opposing army until Washington and his army could escape. Mrs. Murray saved independence. How the wrong men and women got credit that does not belong to them, while God's heroes and God's heroines go ungarlanded. You have heard of the brave words of dying chieftains, but you probably never heard of what a private soldier said, fallen at Resaca, and bleeding under a shell wound in his mouth, and who, though suffering dreadfully from thirst, when a cup of water was offered him declined to drink, saying, "My mouth is all bloody, sir, and it might make the tincup bad for others!" The world knows little or nothing of the bravest words and the bravest deeds. In one of the last letters which Columbus sent to his son he wrote this lamentation: "I receive nothing of the revenue due me. I live by borrowing. Little have I profited by twenty years of service with such toils and perils since at present I do not own a roof in Spain. If I desire to eat or sleep I have no recourse but the inn, and for the most time have not wherewithal to pay my bill." Be not surprised, my hearer, if you suffer injustice. You are in the best of company; the men and women who wrought mightily for God and the world's improvement, and got for it chiefly misrepresentation and abuse while they lived, although afterward they may have had a long row of carriages at the obsequies, and a gilt-edged set of resolutions unanimously adopted for the consolation of the bereft household. Do your full duty, expecting no appreciation in this world, but reward in the world to come.

And now, while I am thinking of this illustrious Ship Captain of Genoa, let me bespeak higher appreciation for the ship captains now in service, many of them this moment on the sea, the lives of tens of thousands of passengers in their keeping. What an awful responsibility is theirs! They go out through the Narrows, or start from Queenstown, or Southampton, or Glasgow; not knowing what cyclone, or collisions, or midnight perils are waiting for them. It requires bravery to face an Army of Atlantic surges led on by hurricanes. A more stupendous scene is not to be witnessed than that of a ship captain walking the bridge of a steamer in the midst of a cyclone. Remember those heroes in your prayers, and when worn out in the service, and they have to command inferior craft or return to the land and go out of service, do them full honor for what they once were. Let the ship companies award them pensions worthy of what they endured until they start on their last voyage from this world to the next. Aye, that voyage we must all take, landsmen as well as seafarers. Let us be sure that we have the right pilot, and the right chart, and the right captain, and that we start in the right direction. It will be to each of us who love the Lord a voyage more wonderful for discovery than that which Columbus took, for, after all we have heard about that other world, we know not where it is or how it looks, and it will be as new as San Salvador was to the glorious captain of the Santa Maria. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man." May the light of that golden beach flash on the darkness, and we be able to step ashore amid groves and orchards and aromas such as this world's atmosphere never ripened or breathed. Aye, fellow-mariners, over the rough sea of this life, through the fogs and mists of earth, see you not already the outline of the better country? Land ahead! Land ahead! Nearer and nearer we come to heavenly wharfage. Throw out the planks and step ashore into the arms of your kindred, who have been waiting and watching for the hour of your disembarkation. Through the rich grace of Christ, our Lord, may we all have such blissful arrival!

INDIVIDUAL ANNEXATION.

The Hegira of Canadians to the United States Constantly Increasing.

The French-Canadian papers continue to bewail the flight of population. At Sorel in one day 250 tickets were sold to persons going to the United States. In the parishes below Quebec the number going exceeds all previous records. At Levis, a concentrating point, 1,500 persons a week take the train for the States. At Sherbrooke, another concentrating point, the exodus is even more remarkable; they come from the north shore and from the south shore; the whole province is being emptied of people. A French contemporary says the cures are alarmed at the extent of the exodus, and so are local bankers and storekeepers.

The clergy have done their best to dissuade the people from going to New England; missionaries like Father Dugas have left nothing undone to persuade them to go to the Canadian northwest; but the stream continues to flow in undiminished volume.

A correspondent says he happened to be in a postoffice not far from the city of Quebec the other day and found that 90 per cent. of the letters came from the United States, and 50 per cent. or over contained money sent by French-Canadians over the line to their friends on this side to enable them to join the caravan.

The majority of the emigrants are farmers. In old times the sons and daughters of farmers went, now the old folks are pulling up stakes. It is, as the French papers say, a "terrible plague." The tories have done their best, within the tory policy, to diminish the outflow. They have built graving-docks and wet-docks, branch railroads and main lines into new regions like the Lake St. John, new postoffices nad new custom houses, new wharves and new harbors; these have cost millions of money and furnished employment to large numbers of men; but withal the exodus grows and shows signs of waxing greater in future years. The cures say the branch railroads have simply provided a cheap means of egress. In old times it cost a habitant $10 or $15 to reach Boston after he had driven miles to the Grand Trunk on the south shore. Now he can embark on his branch road and get to Boston, a colonist's fare on a colonist car, for one-third of the money.—Toronto Globe.

CARNOT'S TOURS.

A Model of Precision and Punctuality in the French President.

No president of the republic has undertaken so many journeys up and down France as M. Carnot, says a Paris correspondent. Thanks to his scientific training, the chief of the state is able to model all his trips on the same methodical plan, and no hitches or any kind occur during his tours. The trips are carefully mapped out long before they begin, nothing being left to whim or caprice. A day is fixed for the departure, a special train is prepared, and the president starts punctually at the appointed ime. His traveling outfit is arranged on the same simple and orderly plan. In two large boxes are stowed away three dress suits, 11 shirts, three cordons of the legion, four pairs of varnished boots, and dozens of socks, cravats, and white gloves, with two buttons in each of them. If his dress clothes be even slightly damaged by dust or rain the president changes at once without delay, so that he is able to walk as spick and span as if he had just come out of the Elysee into a banquet or a reception room. While traveling the president talks to his entourage nearly all the time, never giving himself up to a reverie or to reading. He devotes himself altogether, in fact, to those around him. M. Grevy was less methodical, but equally simple in his arrangements for his annual trip to Montsous-Vaudrey. Marshal de MacMahon was also simplicity itself, his chief occupation in traveling being his gloves, which were always spotlessly white. M. Thiers invariably superintended his own traveling arrangements, and never went anywhere without his bed—a small military one. He discarded gloves, and, like M. Grevy, was an inveterate reader during his long railway journeys.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

The marriage of Prince Ferdinand of Roumania and Princess Marie, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, will take place on January 1, at Sigmaren, Prussia.

Miss Jessie Harlan Lincoln, the daughter of the Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, has entered the Iowa Wesleyan University in Mt. Pleasant, Ia., and will take the classical course.

Joel Chandler Harris, the southern dialectician and litterateur, sails for Africa in December, it being his purpose to revisit the little coast town of Joel, where he was born of missionary parents, January 13, 1842.

Dr. Heinrich Pudor, once director of the Dresden Conservatory, and a popular writer on music, thinks his country is becoming de-Germanized, and has therefore started an extreme nationalist weekly paper.

Dr. William Percy Austin is claimed to be the oldest bishop of the English church in point of service. His field of labor is the diocese of Guiana. He is 85 years old, and has been a bishop for half a century.

Mr. T. B. Blackstone, president of the Chicago & Alton Railway company; Mrs. Blackstone and Misses Snow and Jones, of Chicago, have arrived at the Savoy hotel, London. They will sail from Southampton for New York early in October.

Emperor William has had a return of his old ear trouble. His general health is excellent, but his majesty's spirits are much depressed. Several specialists have been called in consultation and pronounce the cause of the return of the old trouble to be the effect of a cold.

REGENERATION.

To secure a normal and regular tissue change throughout the body use Brandreth's Pills. This tissue metamorphosis consists in constantly proceeding waste of tissue and its regeneration. Brandreth's Pills are the best solvent of the products of disintegration of the tissues and increase their elasticity. They are an alterative and eliminative remedy, which allay irritation and remove obstruction by aiding nature and are of great benefit in cases of temporary and habitual constipation, torpid liver, biliousness, headache, indigestion, rheumatism and diseases arising from an impure state of the blood.

Brandreth's Pills are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

There is no better way to perfume the hair than by using extracts, which are mostly alcohol and whose fragrance fades soon. Make a mob cap of soft, thin silk, line it with cotton that is really saturated with satchet powder, and when the hair is newly dry and silky wear the cap for an hour. Your hair will possess that evasive fragrance so much more intoxicating than any decided essence, however sweet.

A CHINAMAN ON OUR TREATMENT OF CHINA.

If America thinks that an influx of Chinese is ruinous to the country, the only proper course for her is to take counsel with China in the matter; for as long as there is intercourse between the two nations, it stands to reason that neither should take any action affecting the name or interest of the other without consulting the other. Citizens of the United States first encouraged the Chinese to immigrate. Is it not reasonable, then, for China to demand that in this conflict of interest no arbitrary and high-handed action shall be taken by the United States, but that there shall be forbearance and compromise?

We condemn the exclusion bill altogether, because it singles us out for exclusion and thereby degrades us, not only before the world, but before all other Asiatics. But I let that pass, because it was agreed to by the emperor after mutual consultation. We condemn, however, the $1,000-dollar qualification bill, which was made a law without our knowledge and consent, and we condemn each and every effort to pass anti-Chinese bills without counsel having first been taken with our government. If we feel aggrieved at the American people's hostility, we feel indignant at their leaders for their manner of showing this hostility.

What America has to fear is not from China, but from the fact that she stands before the world convicted of injustice toward a weak nation, and that she puts her citizens here in a delicate and painful situation. An American Protestant Episcopal clergyman in Han-Kow, anticipating the adoption of the Geary bill, wrote to his archdeacon, "If this bill is not rescinded—and there seems no chance of that—we had better turn our Chinese mission over to the Church of England and devote ourselves to Japan." This was not because he apprehended retaliation from the Chinese, but, as a man of honor and self-respect, he felt he could not face an audience. So the minister and consuls would feel in respect to the mandarins; so would merchants of the stamp of Russell, Cunningham, Heard, Olyphant, Purdon and Wetmore feel in respect to their dealers; and so would every Christian man of every Christian country feel in respect to the pagan nations of the earth.—Yung Kiung Yen, in the Forum.

FARMER WOODWARD'S AIRSHIP

Coming This Way When It Comes, All the Way From the Pacific Coast.

Robert J. Woodward, a farmer of Ventura county, is preparing to sail from San Diego to New York in a balloon, says the San Francisco Examiner. He had expected to get away before this, but had trouble with the gas company about the gas to fill his air-ship, and he may be detained several days.

Mr. Woodward is an enthusiast on the subject of aerial navigation, and for 10 years has given the question the most exhaustive study. In the theory of the navigation of the atmosphere he is perhaps as well posted as any man living, but in practice he is a novice, never having made an ascension.

On account of the mountains being lower here than in the north, and also of there being nearly always a westerly breeze in this part of the country, Mr. Woodward decided to honor San Diego with his presence, and make it his point of departure, with what degree of success however, remains to be seen.

He arrived in this city about two weeks ago, and while awaiting the arrival of his balloon has busied himself studying the air currents and preparing a peculiar apparatus, which he proposes to attach to his inflated globe.

He proposes by adding two huge white wings to the balloon to sail whither he will, ascending and descending at pleasure. The wings are about 8 by 6 feet, and are spread upon a bamboo pole about 12 feet long, having two branches from the main pole, on either side, and four cross-pieces. The wings are of strong though light-weight canvas, sewed to each piece of the frame.

By working the wings as one would a pair of oars in rowing, the inventor claims to be able to control his movements. At any rate, he has such confidence in his ability to do so that he has not only spent much money on the invention, but proposes to risk his life on it.

The balloon is 36x26 feet, is capable of lifting 400 pounds, and cost $600. It requires 11,000 feet of gas, and about 15 hours is the time necessary to inflate it. Mr. Woodward caused to be erected a canvas screen about 40 feet in height on a vacant lot, where he made an attempt to fill it. Being afraid of getting water in to the baloon after letting in 200 feet, he decided not to take any risk, but obtained the gas from the gas works. Accordingly the valve was opened and the gas released.

Although having no idea of the height he will have to reach, Mr. Woodward expects to obtain an altitude of 10,000 feet easily.

If successful in striking the current he expects to he says it is not impossible to reach the Atlantic coast in 36 hours. He, however, does not expect to travel so quickly, and will take sufficient provisions for a three day's trip, which, he says, in case of necessity, would last him six days.

THE MAN WITH A CANE.

He Gets in His Work on the Stairway of a Ferry Steamer.

He was a portly and dignified business man of Oakland, and he crossed on the narrow gauge boat Encinal to San Francisco, yesterday, accompanied by a stalwart cane, says the San Francisco Call. The boat was a little late in reaching the slip at the mole, and the passengers from three trains were waiting when the doors were opened.

The man with the cane crossed the lower deck, and, grasping the stair-rail, tucked his faithful stick under his arm and prepared to ascend. Half way up he dropped a little parcel he held in his hand, and stooped to pick it up. As he did so the iron furrule of his cane struck the chin of a charming society belle of Oakland, who was directly behind him.

There was a feminine shriek and a momentary backward movement of the crowd, which caused the man with the cane to turn and look behind him, the cane traversing a semicircle about his rotund form as he moved.

It caught a well-known politician from the Bay City directly in the ear, administered a gentle tap on the cheek of a leading divine and captured the hat from the head of an indignant woman, whose vociferous protest reached the ears of the unconscious offender, who, anxious to learn if the whole crowd had gone mad, made another turn.

The cane took a downward course this time, planting its iron point gently but firmly just above the last vest button of a rising young attorney who had been just about to serve an injunction on the offending rod. Instead he executed an involuntary obeisance, and the wand of subjection passing over his head describing a parabola that was beginning to impart a bluish tinge to the atmosphere, prodded the eye of one passenger, filliped playfully the nose of another, and finished up its work by catching in the back hair of its original victim.

There is no knowledge what developments might have followed the next turn had not a quickwitted passenger reached up and with his hand struck down the projecting point, with a forcible injunction to the bearer to keep it down.

It took the battered passengers the whole time of the trip across to take account of damages sustained, and when the boat reached the wharf they were still debating whether they should pitch the fool with the cane overboard or point him out to the members of the band as a man who enjoyed hearing "Comrades" played and would always give a dime to the fiends executing that musical masterpiece.

TO DEVELOP THE CHEST.

Rules Which, If Followed Closely, Will Astonish You.

An eminent physician has said that if the following three simple movements are executed vigorously every day for 20 minutes the effect in a year's time will be very apparent. Before going down to breakfast open wide the window and for 10 minutes go through the following exercises: First, stand perfectly straight, with heels together, and inflate the lungs with the pure morning air, drawing in the breath while 15 is being counted, and expelling it in the same way; repeat this 8 or 10 times. Then bring the arms forward at full length with the palms together, and then throw them vigorously back, trying to touch the backs. At first it will seem impossible, but after a few days' practice it can be done.

Do this from 25 to 50 times. Then raise the arms above the head to the utmost with the palms outward, and then lean slowly forward, keeping the knees perfectly straight and try to touch the ground with the fingers. This, too, requires practice at first, but can be done after awhile. Then raise the arms gradually to the first position and repeat the movement 25 to 50 times. At night go through the same movements. This simple exercise, if persisted in, will prove to be of incalculable benefit.—Philadelphia Times.

A man's virtues are like the sun—always growing larger just as his light goes down.

A ROMANCE OF THE HUDSON.

It was when a schoolboy that I made by first visit to H——, on the Hudson.

As nearly every one knows, a New York boy in the country is looked upon as a "great gun," and if gentlemanly, is considered quite a catch. Being such, I had any number of acquaintances and especially among the "fair sex."

Of course, being but a schoolboy, the girls had very little attraction for me, and it was not until after repeated visits, and I had reached my majority, that they began to particularly attract my attenion. It was during my fourth or fifth visit to the place that I became particularly interested in a daughter of the village postmaster. We attended picnics together, delivered the mail together, and in the evenings sailed on the river together. I was now a lad of 22, and holding a fairly good position. I must honestly confess that I thought seriously of proposing.

It was on the evening previous to my return home that I suggested a sail on the river. To this she agreed, and it was not long before we were enjoying the cooling breeze, and the companionship of one another. Suddenly the scene darkened, the boat rolled furiously, and the clouds wept as they had never wept before. We pulled for the nearest shore, and with little attention to our surroundings made for a barn close by. We had been there but a moment when we espied a cottage in the distance, and began to discuss what step to take next.

Suddenly a face appeared at a window. It proved to be a young friend of my companion; and after partaking of some warm tea, we were invited into the cozy sitting room, to wait the passing away of the storm. I was duly presented to Miss D—, who was the eldest daughter of a widow, and being the main support of the family, was unable to participate in the pleasures of the average girl.

Of course she had heard of me from the village gossips, and seemed somewhat surprised to find that a man of my social standing could be so polite to one in her position. She had always looked upon me as some stuck-up dude from the city, and not worthy the notice of a sensible girl. But the surprise was not all on her side. To me she was the prettiest girl I had ever seen. I was afterward told that she was of Indian descent, and this no doubt accounted for the beautiful complexion which she possessed. How I had overlooked her during my many visits I could not tell.

On the following morning I took my departure for the city, and the beautiful face of Miss D—— went with me. I could not eat; I could not sleep; and wherever I went that face was forever before me.

On the New Years following I took a flying trip to H——, and in the evening Miss D—— accompanied me to the theater. A short time after this my now "steady company" removed to a neighboring village, and my trips thereafter were made to this, her new home.

It was here that I spent my next vacation, and it was here that I had the privilege of slipping a diamond on her never-before decorated hand, and thus securing for her the eternal envy of many of her former and less fortunate acquaintances.

Our marriage took place just four years ago; and, in conclusion, it may interest the Recorder readers to know that on the fourth anniversary of this wedding our 3-year-old soon took first prize at the our 3-year-old son took first prize at the Recorder.

BLACKWELL'S BULL DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO.

SO SAY WE ALL OF US.

I'm an old smoker, and have at one time or another tried all the different Smoking Tobaccos, but for a good smoke Bull Durham beats 'em all.

A leading characteristic of Bull Durham has always been the hold which it takes on old and fastidious smokers. What its excellence first secured, its uniformity has always retained, and it is, therefore, to-day as twenty-five years ago, the most popular Smoking Tobacco in the world.

THE TOBACCO MOTH.

The Amount of Mischief They Can Do in Their Feeding.

"Oh, papa, see the pretty humming bird?" The object at which the child pointed was poised above a big white flower on rapidly agitating wings, robbing the blossom of nectar with its long beak, says the Washington Star.

"That is not a humming bird, pet," said the gentleman who sat on the porch in the gathering dusk of evening. "It is a hornblower moth. Once upon a time it was a big green caterpiller."

"A caterpillar, papa?"

"Yes, dearie. The insect which looks so like a humming bird, as you say, is an enemy of my own, because it destroys tobacco. Perhaps I would not have to pay so much for this cigar I am smoking if there were no such moths in existence."

"But the moth does not eat tobacco, papa."

"No, my dear, but it lays eggs that hatch out caterpillars, and the caterpillars feed on the tobacco leaves. There are plenty of them over in Maryland and Virginia, and the planters have to fight them constantly. The moth deposits its eggs on the leaves and the new-born worms eat holes through them, which render them useless for making cigars. When they are full grown they are about three inches long. They are bright green, with small red heads, and are very fat and unpleasant."

"What becomes of them after they get big?"

"Oh, they keep on eating as long as they are growing, gobbling up whole leaves and plants, and after shedding their skins a few times they burrow into the ground and stay there quite torpid for a while. Then they come out of the earth in the shape of great moths, such as the one you saw a moment ago. After that they do not care to feed upon tobacco leaves any more, they live on the juices of flowers, particularly on those of the honeysuckle and a plant called the 'Jamestown weed.' They extract the honey from the blossoms by means of a flexible tongue five or six inches in length.

When they are not feeding the tongue is coiled up like a watch spring under the head. Pretty soon they lay their eggs on the tobacco leaves and then die."

"But what do they do to kill them?"

"A favorite way of the planters over in Maryland is to plant the Jamestown weeds in the tobacco fields and put in each flower a little black arsenic or other poison. Then the moths come along, feed on the poisoned honey of the blossoms and die. Men go through the fields also and kill the caterpillars by pinching off their heads. If such measures were not taken the insects would destroy the tobacco crops. Fortunately nature has provided certain enemies that destroys the tobacco worms. There is a kind of fly, very small, which punches holes in the bodies of the caterpillars and lays its eggs in them. Little worms are hatched from these eggs and feed upon the caterpillars, finally spinning minute cocoons.

"Sometimes as many as a hundred of these cocoons are found attached to a single caterpillar. Planters who know what they are about never kill the caterpillars which they find are infested with these parasites, but leave them to spread the trouble among their kind. It is a curious fact that the fly parasites have other parasites that feed upon themselves, laying their eggs in the cocoons. Flocks of young turkeys are often let loose in the tobacco field in order that they may eat the caterpillars, and the planters pay the men so much for every moth that they kill by striking them with pieces of shingles as they are hovering over the flowers in the twilight, which is their time for going abroad. Hornets and wasps also eat the caterpillars, and so are friends of the farmers."

BATTLE WITH SHARKS.

A Young Cuban Cut Two of Them to Pieces With a Knife.

"The prettiest battle I ever witnessed was between a Cuban and a couple of sharks," said Thomas C. Ridgeway. "We had reached Havana from New York, and were lying perhaps half a mile from the docks, awaiting the signal to go in. Several fruit peddlers had boarded us, and among them a swarthy, bare-legged young fellow who looked like a pirate. The purser was standing by the rail, holding his 5-year-old son in his arms, watching a couple of monster sharks that were hanging about the vessel, when the child slipped from his grasp and fell into the water. The father plunged overboard and seized him, and the sharks at once made for the pair. The bare-legged young buccaneer dropped the fruit-basket and went over the rail like a flash. As the first shark turned on its back, the invariable prelude to biting, the Cuban rose and with a long, keen knife fairly disemboweled it. The other was not to be disposed of so easily. He seemed to realize that in the Cuban he had a dangerous foe, and, in the language of the ring, sparred for an opening. Several of us began to blaze away at him with our revolvers, but the Cuban appeared to fear our bad marksmanship more than the shark, and begged us to desist. The purser and his child had been pulled on deck, and the combatants had a fair field. The Cuban dived, but the shark did not wait for him to come up, and changed his location. Finally the latter advanced straight upon his antagonist, his ugly fin cutting through the water like a knife, turned quickly upon its back, and the huge jaws came together with a vicious snap; but the Cuban was not between them. He had sunk just in time to avoid the shark, and as the latter passed shot the steel into it. The old sea-wolf made the water boil, and strove desperately to strike his antagonist with his tail, but the latter kept well amidships and literally cut him to pieces. We made up a purse for him, and the next day the brave raganuffin could have given Solomon points in the matter of gorgeous apparel."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

City Auditor's Office.

Toledo, O., Oct. 3, 1892.

The committee on ways and means of the Common Council of the City of Toledo, Ohio, and the undersigned, invite sealed proposals at this office to

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1892,

at 7 o'clock p. m. for the purchase of Street Improvement Bonds to the amount of Nine Hundred and Three and 26-100 ($903.26-100) Dollars, bearing date Oct. 16, 1892, and payable as follows: Ninety-three 26-100 Dollars on April 16, 1893, and Ninety Dollars at the expiration of every six months thereafter, to and including Oct. 16, 1897, at the office of the city treasurer with interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually at the same place as evidenced by coupons to be attached to said bonds.

Said improvement bonds are issued pursuant to section 2704 to 2707 of the revised statutes of the state of Ohio, and also under an ordinance of the Common Council of the City of Toledo, Ohio. "To provide for the issue of Improvement Bonds to pay the cost and expense of the improvement of the alley between St. Clair street and Superior street, from Jefferson street to Madison street."—Passed Dec. 21, 1891.

The denomination of these bonds will be first payment one bond of $93.26-100 and thereafter one of $90 each payment.

The said bonds will be sold at not less than par and accrued interest, to the highest bidder.

Bidders will be required to state the gross amount they will pay for the bonds besides the accrued interest to date of delivery at Toledo, Ohio. They will also be required to deposit with each bid an amount of money or a certified check on some responsible bank equal to at least five (5) per centum of the par value of the bonds, so bid for, as a guarantee of good faith, and that the bid so made (if successful) will be fulfilled in accordance with the terms thereof, and the requirements of the law and ordinances. When the bids have been examined, and the award made according to law, all monies or checks deposited as guarantees shall be returned to the depositor, or held by the city auditor subject to his call except that of the successful bidder, which shall be held and considered, and accepted as part payment of the bonds so awarded or sold, but should there be any repudiation of the contract or agreement, or refusal to accept and pay for the bonds so sold, then and in that case the deposit shall be forfeited to the city of Toledo, and shall become the property of said city, in compensation for loss and expenses attending the sale of said bonds and as liquidated damages for repudiation of bid. And no bid will be received if not accompanied by money or check aforesaid.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Proposals should be addressed to the Auditor of the city of Toledo, Ohio," and be indorsed "Proposals for improvement bonds."

THE PROFESSIONAL JESTER.

A Bostonese Discourse on the Anatomy of Laughter.

There is no more sobering invitation than that of "come now and let us laugh." If one's sides have been fairly shaking with suppressed merriment and one is on the very verge of suppressed cachination, at those words his muscles relax and feeling of profound melancholy steals through his whole body, says the Boston Journal. But despite this well known physiological fact there is growing up a literature all about us which has for its avowed purpose that one thing—to make the readers of it laugh. Perhaps, it is not correct to say that this literature "is growing up."* With the volumes which are being turned from the presses and the periodicals which are given over to it, it would seem to be already "up" and far away on its way in the race with the traditional bay tree. If some scientific wight had written a treatise on the anatomy of laughter we might know just how to estimate these books. Where they fail as literature they might be regarded as successes as physiological artifices.

Now, why does man laugh at all? Animals never laugh; savages seldom do, and in small children it appears only as a shriek or shrill scream. In the seventeenth century an Italian astrologer published an essay in which he pretended to divide all mankind into classes in accordance with their laughs. The philosopher was said to express his mirth in "hee-hee-hee," the bilious man in "hae-hae-hae;" the phlegmatic man in "ha-ha-ha," and the sanguine man in "hoho-ho," and that all that one had to do to read character was to listen for the person'laugh. In the next century Poinsinet de Sivey published a treatise which purported to be a conversation between Destouche and Fontenelle on the same subject. The former declared that laughter was based on a principle of reason and was the effect of joy. Fontenelle, on the other hand, maintained that it was like anger, a sudden madness, and Baudelaire, in his celebrated essay, reiterates the same thing. The point is that a man seldom laughs when he is alone, or when he is collected enough to reason. Montesquien gives another turn to the discussion and says laughter originates in pride. In laughing at others we applaud some supposed superiority in ourselves.

Though diverse these opinions, they all touch upon some phrase of the phenomenon and so may be accepted as truths. We laugh because we are pleased; we laugh at the incongruous conjunction of ideas or objects; we laugh at the unfortunate plight of others. The mental gymnast is confined largely to the second of these causes of laughter. He runs of necessity to the grotesque—the grotesque in comparison, in ideas, in spelling and in typographical form. He shows a profound disregard of Emerson's admonitions relative to the superlative. He seeks the bizarre in fashions, and, in short, sports the motley king's jester. But in the very search after his object he loses it. His books are the saddest that the press gives us. We offer these suggestions on the mechanics of laughing in the hope that the application of science may help him.

MEAT EATING AND MORALITY.

Count Tolstoi's First Step in the Regeneration of Mankind.

I only desire to establish the propositions that in order to lead a moral life, it is necessary to observe a certain sequence in good actions; that if a man is serious in his aspiration to lead a good life the practical manifestations of that desire will necessarily unfold themselves in a certain order, and that in this order the abstemiousness (self mastery) is the first virtue which he will have to cultivate. In the pursuit of the virtue of abstemiousness he must again observe a certain definite order, and the first step therein will be abstemiousness in food fasting.

In the practice of fasting the first thing from which he must abstain, if he really and truly aims at leading a good moral life, is animal food, and this for the intelligible reason that, not to speak of the passions it engenders and fosters, the consumption of animal food is plainly immoral, because it demands an act which does violence to our moral sentiments—viz: murder—and is encouraged and kept up only by men's greed of gold and their appetite for savory food. The reason why the first step in fasting and in right living is abstinence from animal food has been admirably formulated, not by one man only, but by all mankind in the persons of its most accredited representatives during the course of human history.

But why, one may ask, if the illegality—i. e., immorality—of consuming animal food has been recognized by mankind for such a long period, have people nevertheless persisted down to the present in ignoring the law? This question naturally suggests itself to those who are prone to be guided by public opinion. The answer to the question, however, is that all moral progress (and moral progress is the essence of all progress whatever) is a work of time, is accomplished slowly, but that the sign of genuine progress, as distinguished from casual advance, is its uninterrupted continuousness and its ever increasing rapidity.

The vegetarian movement ought to fill with gladness the souls of those who have at heart the realization of God's kingdom upon earth, not because vegetarionism itself is such an important step toward the realization of this kingdom (all steps are equally important or unimportant), but because it serves as a criterion by which we know that the pursuit of moral perfection on the part of man is genuine and sincere, inasmuch as it has taken that form which it must necessarily assume, and has truly begun at the very beginning.

It is impossible not to rejoice at this, just as it would be impossible for people not to feel glad who, after having vainly endeavored to reach the top of the house by attempting to climb up the walls from various sides, at last meet at the bottom step of the staircase, and crowding together there feel that there is no way of reaching the top except by ascending that stairway and beginning with this first and lowest step.—New Review.

THE ELEPHANT KNEW.

Evidence of Sagacity and Reasoning Power in the Stupid-Looking Pachyderm.

Stories of the elephant's sagacity are everywhere rife in India, and, indeed, every one who happens to have seen these creatures employed by the government contract labor will scarcely have failed to notice numerous instances of it himself.

An engineer officer, who was stationed at Calcutta a few years back, was possessed of a very valuable elephant, which, to his great grief, contracted a virulent disease of the eyes, and, after suffering with it for a few days, became completely blind. His owner thereupon applied to a resident surgeon, stating the case, and asking if he could do anything for the relief of his favorite. The surgeon, after examining the elephant's eyes, said he was willing to try the effect of nitrate of silver on one of them, that being a remedy which was very beneficial in the treatment of the human eye afflicted with a similar disease. The animal's driver was accordingly summoned, and the great beast by his instrumentality made to lie down. The doctors then applied the nitrate of silver, and the elephant, uttering a roar of pain, jumped up and behaved in such an outrageous fashion that it was some hours before he could be calmed down and secured in his stable again.

A day or two afterward the doctor called again, and found that his application had worked wonders, the sight of the one eye being almost entirely restored, and in consequence determined to operate in a similar manner on the other. He was apprehensive of the animal's behavior, more especially as he was now able to see, and suggested that he be properly secured before he operated upon him. However, the elephant had recognized the doctor's voice, and, to everybody's intense astonishment, followed him of his own accord out of the stable into the open, lay down without persuasion, placing his head quietly on one side with the diseased eye upward, then curled up his trunk and drew in a deep breath, like any human being might do who was about to undergo a painful operation, and awaited the doctor's pleasure. The latter used his brush as dexterously as possible, and applied the caustic as quickly as he could, and at the same time perform the work thoroughly. During the entire operation the elephant, so far from behaving as he had previously done, uttered not a sound, and when it was over got up with a sigh of satisfaction, and manifested by every means in his power the delight and gratitude he experienced at its completion, gently caressing the surgeon with his trunk and making other similar demonstrations as he walked back to his stake, and, despite the pain he was suffering, uttered no sound.

This incident, which was well known in Calcutta, not only showed memory, but a high order of reasoning power, for the animal, remembering the benefit he had received from the first application, was, in spite of the pain it caused him, not only willing but anxious to undergo the second, in order that his other eye might be cured in like manner.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

STREAKS OF LUCK.

Fortunes Which Have Been Made by Mere Accident.

One O'Reilly, trader, in casually stopping in the house of a Boer, near Pucil, Griqualand West, saw some children playing with a number of exceedingly pretty pebbles, and on asking his Dutch host whether he could take one, he was promptly told that he could do so, as "the children had plenty more of them."

O'Reilly took the stone to Grahamstown and sold it for $3,000; it was resold for $25,000.

A Dutchman named DeBeer had built himself the usual wattie and daub house on his farm, but it had not been erected for quite a long period before some inquiring prospectors found that the rough cast used for the walls actually contained diamonds. The farm speedily changed hands for $10,000. It now, with its neighboring mines, produces over $15,000,000 of diamonds annually, the total wealth of this discovery to date being probably over $250,000,000.

At Wesselton, a Boer riding out at sundown to bring in his horses from the veldt, where they had been running all day, saw a small animal called a "meercat" (it somewhat resembles a weasle and burrows like rabbits) industriously scraping some earth from his hole. Some peculiarity of the ground so thrown up led the Dutchman to fill his handkerchief with it, and after he had stabled his horses, by the dismal light of a small lamp he examined the nature of the earth. To his astonishment and delight he found a three-quarter carat diamond in the sands.

Further search at the meercat's hole revealed other diamonds and six months ago no less than $2,550,000 was refused for the farm. Since the accidental discovery over 200,000 carats of the fine white diamonds have been extracted from the mine.—London Tid-Bits.

If you are Billous, take Beecham's Pills.

Gus Harry, believed to be the last of the Narragansett Indians, died last week at Old Mystic, Conn., and was buried in the burial ground of the tribe, near the village. Till the last he would have no dealings with the Pequots, of whom there is a large reservation near by, because they were enemies of his tribe.
